ROOSEVELT AGAIN POSTPONES VISIT TO GEORGIA AS INFECTED JAW CUTS SHORT FISHING VACATION

RIVERS DECLARES 3-POINT TAX PLAN WILL BE ENACTED

Survey Discloses No Program for Basic Revision or Definite Move to Establish New Base Is Under Consideration.

GROSS LEVY BILL 'MAY' BE OFFERED

Governor's Statement Does Not Announce Either an Income, Sales Assessment at Present.

By L. A. FARRELL.

Despite a statement from Governor Rivers yesterday that tax reform in the form of homestead exemptions, classification of intangible properties and a changed method of collecting state levies would be accomplished during the special session, no plan for a basic revision of the state's tax structure has been offered in the legislature and as far as could be learned last night there is no definite move to present a new tax base.

No general sales tax bill has been introduced. Likewise, there has been no gross income tax measure, and nothing has been done toward removing the present five-mill state ad valorem tax.

Key Reveals Bill.
Representative William H. Key, of Jasper county, a known advocate of the gross income tax plan, yesterday handed to the press printed copies of a gross income tax bill labeled "A Penny in the Dollar for Education Act."

Asked if the bill is to be introduced, Key said it might, "maybe next week."

Key added the bill might be offered as a substitute for some bill already introduced and now before the ways and means committee, but investigation revealed the only general and state-wide tax bill before that committee is the intangible classification bill.

The bill would levy a tax of 1 percent on all gross incomes, repealing some of the present income and occupational taxes. He did not say what it would yield but others estimated the income at between $10,000,000 and $15,000,000 annually, more than enough to pay the full appropriation to the common schools and the university system. The funds derived from the bill, as drawn, are allocated to the schools.

Governor Rivers' statement concerning the legislative situation as he sees it followed publication of an article in yesterday's edition of The Constitution stating that there would be no general tax revision during the session; that is, no revision to a point where either a general sales tax or a gross income tax or any other statewide tax that would supplant the present system of ad valorem taxation.

In his statement the Governor

Four Commissioners Caught, Not the Deer

Four of Fulton county's five commissioners went hunting for deer in the Cherokee National forest yesterday and "bagged" game warden near Copperhill, Tenn.

The commissioners and three companions were arrested on charges of failure to have non-resident deer hunting permits. Deputy Warden Peters listed the "prisoners" as George F. Longino, J. A. Ragsdale, Ed L. Almand and T. G. Chastain, all Fulton county commissioners; John Whaley, E. D. Greenburg and C. Harrison, of Atlanta.

The Georgians paid $10 fines and costs each and returned home. "We did not get a deer," Ragsdale said after returning home last night.

BYRON SHAW HELD IN LIQUOR CHASE

Arrest May Revoke Five-Year Suspension of City Lottery Probe Charge.

Byron A. Shaw, under a five-year suspended sentence from Fulton superior court as a result of the September-October lottery probe, was arrested yesterday by federal agents as they seized a liquor car near Cumming.

Superior Court Judge E. E. Pomerooy, who sentenced the Atlanta lottery operator and bootlegger on five counts and then suspended sentence on recommendation of Assistant Solicitor General E. E. Andrews, said yesterday the suspension may be revoked.

May Revoke Suspension.
"The new federal arrest will have some effect on Shaw's status in superior court," he said. "I will consider future action on his case."

Mr. Andrews, special prosecutor in the recent grand jury probe, indicated on being informed of the arrest that the new charge may come to the court's attention in several ways.

"I am not prepared to say at present," he said, "whether the solicitor's office will inform the court."

He added that the federal officers or any citizen might bring the matter to the court's attention, or that the court might act on its own initiative.

Shaw was arrested several weeks ago by county police on a motor vehicle law violation.

He was bound over to the federal grand jury under $500 bond yesterday on a charge of violating internal revenue laws.

Shaw, a companion who gave his name as Whitey Marshall, was arrested by officers of the state highway patrol and Mrs. Kling and Son See Flyer Killed in 13th Event at Miami.

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 3.—(P)—Two of the country's ace air racing pilots, Rudy H. Kling, of Lemont, Ill., and Frank Haines, of Detroit, were catapulted to death in their planes today within split seconds of each other at the opening of the Miami air show.

Neither airplane burned in crashing. At nightfall both were set afire to destroy the wreckage. The event in which the men died was 13th on the opening day's program.

The double tragedy occurred a few moments after Jacqueline Cochran tore in from New York with a new record of 4 hours, 12 minutes, 28 seconds for the 1,710-mile airline.

Kling and Haines went out of control on the first turn of a small, closed race course and hit the ground at nearly 200 miles an hour in full view of Kling's wife and small son.

Rescuers who raced to the wreckage a half-mile north of the municipal airport said the two tiny machines had been reduced to fragments by the force of the crashes. The bodies had to be sawed out.

By strange coincidence, Haines' little racer was powered with a motor owned by the late Jimmy Wedell, plane builder and veteran racer, who died in a crash.

The racing ships, in company with a half-dozen others, had just left the ground in one of the feature events of the day. Spectators said neither pilot appeared to have his machine under complete control.

At the first turn of the five-mile, triangular course the two planes wavered for a split second and then plunged earthward, evidently caught in the same down-draft. A stiff wind was blowing from the north.

Spectators in the stand saw the two planes sink as though they were being sucked toward the

Atlanta's Population Near 413,000, Check of Metropolitan Area Shows

Incomplete estimates on Atlanta's population indicate the metropolitan area's population for 1938 will be at least 413,000, officials of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce said yesterday.

Chamber officials also said the population figures within the city limits are expected to reach the 292,000 mark.

As for this year, Frank K. Shaw, secretary of the Chamber's industrial bureau, announced the population figures as 408,450 for the metropolitan area and 289,000 for the area within city limits.

The metropolitan area comprises 221 square miles, while the city limits comprise 34.4 square miles. Comparative population figures given out were: City limits, 1920, 200,616; 1930, 270,366; 1936, 286,000; metropolitan area, 1920, 260,424; 1930, 370,920; 1936, 402,400.

According to the Chamber of Commerce, in 1937, 345,000 persons lived in Fulton county, and 82,650 lived in DeKalb county.

In the state, the population estimate, as of July 1, 1937, by the Census Bureau was 3,065,000, compared with their figure of April 1, 1930, of 2,908,506.

Increases were also shown in other southern states, census figures revealed. The comparative figures follow: South Carolina, April 1, 1930, 1,738,765; estimated, July 1, 1937, 1,875,000; Florida, 1930, 1,468,211; 1937, 1,670,000; Tennessee, 1930, 2,616,556; 1937, 2,893,000; Alabama, 1930, 2,646,248; 1937, 2,895,000.

BORAH DENOUNCES CROP REDUCTION AS SUICIDAL MOVE

'Lion of Idaho,' Battling as of Old, Charges Legislation Federal 'Blackmail' Unjust and Assuredly Unconstitutional.

SMITH PROPOSES COTTON SUBSIDY

South Carolinian Also Suggests Means To Keep 1937 Lint Crop From Depressing Market Price.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—(P)—Senator Borah, Republican, Idaho, stirred the senate today with a 90-minute address charging that the philosophy of crop reduction in the new farm bill was driving the country headlong into national suicide.

He was the battling Borah of old, rising in the midst of debate to land relentless blows against legislation which he denounced as federal "blackmail," a "supremely unjust" punishment of the human family, and clearly unconstitutional.

Blames Hoover, Roosevelt.
Blaming the Hoover administration for originating the philosophy of scarcity, the Roosevelt regime for continuing it, the legendary "Lion of Idaho," roared: "To pursue a policy of reducing production means constant reduction of the purchasing power of more and more people."

"It means a program of reduction of production every so often to maintain prices. And that, Mr. President, would be national suicide!"

With that he summed up arguments that the pending bill would put farm prices in a "strait jacket" and "draw a boundary" around the commodities farmer might produce. The thing to do, he declared, was to use surpluses to feed the hungry and then dispose of the rest abroad at whatever price it would bring.

Meanwhile the question of giving the tax collector a chance at the income from federal, state and municipal securities made its special session debut today.

It bobbed up in the discussions of the house subcommittee on taxation, and produced an apparent consensus that if tax exempt securities are to be made taxable it will take a constitutional amendment to do it.

A total of $14,854,000,000 state and municipal securities and $35,548,000,000 federal securities are outstanding. The Roosevelt administration has consistently urged

POLICE UNIT OKAYS 10 ONE-WAY LANES

Council Committee Votes 3 to 2; Stiff Fight on Plan Looms Monday.

By a vote of three to two, the police committee of city council last night approved a one-way plan involving changes on ten of Atlanta's main thoroughfares.

The one-way street plan was fostered by Captain Jack Malcom, head of the traffic department.

The proposal will go before city council Monday, when a bitter battle is anticipated. I. Glier Halley, mayor pro tem, who attended the meeting last night, said he "would lead the fight Monday against passage of the proposal."

Mayor Hartsfield voted against the proposal, stating Chief of Police M. A. Hornsby had not been given an opportunity to study the plan thoroughly and he thought the chief should have this opportunity.

Another dissenting vote was cast by Councilman John T. Marler, who said the plan was "too drastic to be adopted without more study."

Those favoring the proposal were G. Dan Bridges, chairman of the committee, and Councilmen Cecil Hester and M. C. (Mac) Bolen.

Under the plan, the following streets would become one-way: All of Spring.

Spring street, entire length, from its intersection with Peachtree street to its intersection with

JAPANESE TROOPS HALTED BY FRENCH

Stern American Protest Ousts Nipponese From Shanghai Foreign Area.

SHANGHAI, Dec. 4.—(Saturday)—(P)—Japanese demands today the right to enter any part of Shanghai's International Settlement without advance notification. The demand was presented to the Shanghai municipal council.

SHANGHAI, Dec. 4.—(Saturday)—(P)—Japanese ran into difficulties in the International Settlement for the second successive day today when they attempted to move supplies through the French concession.

French authorities threw a police cordon across the entrance to the concession to block five beflagged Japanese army trucks, but finally permitted them to go through.

An American marine commander's vigorous protest yesterday against Japanese entry into his defense sector, following the bombing of a Japanese "victory" parade, brought almost immediate Japanese withdrawal.

Quit 30-Block Area.
Later the Japanese also withdrew from military occupancy of an area of some 30 blocks in the heart of the International Settlement where the bombing occurred.

Today's action by the French came as Japanese troops attempted to transport supplies from Hongkew through the Settlement to Nantao, to the south.

The incident followed a day and night of tension after the bombing of the "victory" parade.

Japanese had drawn a cordon of bayonets around the 30-block area immediately after a Chinese student tossed a hand grenade at the "victory" parade of 6,000 Japanese warriors as it passed down busy Nanking road.

Serious Japanese. As the Japanese, after several moments of near panic, re-formed to resume the parade, this man, evidently in a patriotic frenzy, hurled himself from a tall building on Nanking road. His body crashed into a barbed wire entanglement.

During the near panic a 75-year-old American, Vaughan Read, had a fist fight with several Japanese who he said molested him. Japanese took note of reports that the German ambassador to China, Dr. Oskar P. Trautmann, had visited Nanking to suggest possible peace terms to General Chiang.

DEMANDS GROW TO RECALL TROOPS
WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—(UP)—Congressional advocates of strict neutrality tonight renewed their demands that United States troops be withdrawn from the Sino-Japanese war zone after American Marines almost clashed with Japanese troops in the International Settlement in Shanghai.

Senator Nye, Republican, North Dakota, leader of the senate mandatory neutrality bloc, said the troops should not have been sent to the settlement "in the first place."

Senator Clark, Democrat, Missouri, warned every day American soldiers remain in China there is "danger of embroiling the whole nation."

Jane Gossips With Winner Of Film Test

Elizabeth Geisz' Ambition Fulfilled on Visit to Hollywood.

When 9-year-old Elizabeth Geisz, daughter of Mrs. Hans Geisz, of 173 Thirteenth street, won a trip to Hollywood in the screen contest of Astral Productions, sponsored here recently by The Constitution, she said she wanted to meet Jane Withers.

Yesterday she had fulfilled her ambition and was looking forward to the return trip to Atlanta with her mother. Immediately after her arrival in Hollywood two weeks ago, Elizabeth spent a day at the studio with Jane, who left Atlanta for Hollywood and was skyrocketed to fame almost overnight in Twentieth Century-Fox films.

The two Atlanta youngsters spent a day together reminiscing about Atlanta and when Elizabeth left the studio, Jane presented her with a "Jane Withers doll." After posing for Christmas seal pictures, the young Atlanta film star autographed a picture—"To Elizabeth, I wish you as much luck as I have had, lovingly, Jane Withers."

Elizabeth and her mother will leave Hollywood this week and travel by American Airlines to Dallas, Texas, where they will change to a Delta plane for the flight into Atlanta.

Elizabeth won the trip to Hollywood when she came out the winner in a field of more than 100 contestants in screen test feature sponsored here during the summer by The Constitution.

Mail Bags Recovery Hints at U. S. Robbery

NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—(P)—Police said tonight five bags of United States mail and registered packages had been recovered on the waterfront, adding they could not say whether a robbery was involved or what the sacks contained.

Federal agents said they had no knowledge of any mail theft.

Associates of Lewis and Green said it was too early to determine the trend of the negotiations which have been in the bargaining and trading stage since last October. Tentative proposals have been laid on the table but never reduced to writing.

Death in Exile of 'Living Buddha' Leaves Tibet Without Grand Lama

SHANGHAI, Dec. 3.—(P)—Reports reached here by way of India today that the Panchen Lama, the living Buddha of Tibet, died November 30 in exile at Jyekundo, western China.

His death left the mysterious "forbidden land" without either of the Grand Lamas who exercised a divided spiritual and temporal absolutism over the mid-Atlantic country of 3,000,000 people.

The Panchen Lama, worshipped as a reincarnation of Buddha himself and spiritual head of Tibet, was exiled by the Dalai Lama, Tibet's supreme temporal lord, in 1924. Each Grand Lama must certify to the reincarnation of the other in a man-child born at the time of his death; but because of his exile, the Panchen Lama was unable to recognize the new Dalai

GREEN, LEWIS FAIL TO SETTLE DISPUTE

Rivals End Face-to-Face Conversations, Will Report to Full Committees

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—(P)—John L. Lewis and William Green ended their face-to-face peace conference tonight, announcing they had reached no conclusion or recommendation for a united labor movement.

Emerging from the conference room separately, the American Federation of Labor president said he and Lewis and their two aides, comprising a special subcommittee, would report the results of their two days of negotiations back to the full negotiating committees on December 21.

Green and George M. Harrison, chief of the AFL negotiating committee, hurried away from the conference room after making the brief announcement that no conclusions had been reached.

CIO Leader Lewis and Philip Murray, his chief strategist, stopped long enough to discuss briefly the wind-up of their conference.

Fair Assumption.
Asked if the peace negotiations were left in status quo, Lewis replied, "That is a fair assumption."

Before tonight's meeting, labor experts familiar with conditions facing the conferees said their big task was finding an acceptable method of bringing Lewis' new industrial unions into the AFL fold and preserving their identity and functions.

The 10 international unions which threw their support to Lewis in two years ago and formed the nucleus of the CIO still are technically affiliated with the federation, although on the suspended list.

Associates of Lewis and Green said it was too early to determine the trend of the negotiations which have been in the bargaining and trading stage since last October. Tentative proposals have been laid on the table but never reduced to writing.

F.D.R. WILL START FOR WASHINGTON THIS AFTERNOON

President Asks That His Regrets Be Expressed to Warm Springs and Gainesville Officials, Says He'll Come Later.

GENERAL HEALTH HELD 'EXCELLENT'

Chief Executive Has Been Suffering Since November 15 From Failure of Tooth Pocket To Heal.

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 3.—(P)—President Roosevelt decided to cut three days from his vacation schedule today and to start for Washington tomorrow due to what he described as delayed healing of his gum.

The chief executive had an infected tooth extracted November 18. He absorbed much poison from the double pocket left by the extraction and one of these openings still was draining when he left Washington November 27 for his fishing cruise on which he hoped to regain strength.

Condition "Excellent."
Officials at temporary White House headquarters here described his general condition as excellent but pointed out he could not get the dental treatment on the boat that he could obtain in Washington.

In a message to Secretary Marvin McIntire here, the President said that because of the slowness in healing of his gum he deemed it advisable to return direct to Washington and not make his planned visit to Warm Springs and Gainesville, Ga., on the way.

It was the second time the President had been forced to postpone his scheduled trip to Georgia because of the tooth extraction.

The president first noticed the aching tooth the night of November 15. He lost a lot of sleep that night and next morning Captain Ross T. McIntire, naval physician, and Lieutenant Commander Yando, naval dentist, were called in.

The condition was accompanied by a slight temperature which hung on for several days but never exceeded normal by more than one degree.

Dr. Yando tried to save the tooth but decided to remove it November 18. Meanwhile, the President's condition was aggravated by a stomach disorder, officially described as "gastro-intestinal," but this was remedied quickly.

At one time the President's jaw was swollen to the size of a grapefruit, an aide said.

Dr. McIntire is aboard the Potomac but the naval dentist remained in Washington.

At Capital Monday.
The President now will reach Washington Monday evening instead of Thursday as originally planned. He was to have landed here Monday and gone on to Warm Springs for a 24-hour visit, including a belated Thanksgiving dinner with the infantile paralysis patients there.

He also had planned to speak informally Wednesday at the de-

RFC'S JONES URGES FRIENDLY ENTENTE OF U. S. AND TRADE

'If We Can't Manage, We Should Give Country Back to Indians,' He Says.

NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—(AP)—Intelligent, cordial, friendly and determined co-operation between government and business was presented by Chairman Jesse H. Jones, of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, as the key to economic betterment. "If we can't manage to get along, we should give the country back to the Indians," he said.

Jones, addressing a dinner meeting of the New York Southern Society, said there unquestionably was a "very marked" slowing up in all business activity but added:

"Notwithstanding the realities of these recessions, or the fears that have been multiplying in the minds of many people, we have not reached the stages of a depression."

Professing inability to understand cause of these fears, he mentioned "fear of government" as the most frequently heard reason.

Not a Good Reason. "But," he said, "that is not a good reason. Our government is what we make it. We probably got out too soon after our recent illness. Maybe we overtaxed our strength, or put the machine in high when we should have tried it a little while in second speed. We were very low in '31 and '32; the country almost had been liquidated."

Asserting "too many of us feel that government supervision is government interference," Jones said it was the government's "responsibility" to see to it business "plays the game square, and does not charge too much for its service."

Danger of Talk. "We may be able to talk and think ourselves into a prolonged recession in business, but I repeat, there is no true basis for another depression. The budget can be balanced by the next fiscal year, Jones said, only "if we can get business started again and people back to work."

Jones said revision of the tax laws was "assured within a few months."

Norman Thomas Says New Deal Saved Capitalism.

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 3.—(AP)—Norman Thomas, former Socialist candidate for President, told the Pittsburgh League of Women Voters today, "You, who are mostly middle class, should thank President Roosevelt, because he did as much as any man alive to save capitalism."

He said the Socialists, not the conservatives, should criticize the New Deal and added:

"Roosevelt has accepted the capitalist system and tried to reform it. He certainly is not a Socialist because Socialists would have tried for production for use based on social ownership."

earth, and then twin clouds of dust as the machines struck. For Kling it was the termination of a brilliant career in air racing marked last September by his winning of both the classic Thompson and the Greve trophy races at the national air meet in Cleveland. Kling was the big money winner of the annual meet there.

The fatalities were the first in the 10-year history of Miami's All-American air maneuvers. Miss Cochran, wife of Floyd B. Odum, the financier, was credited by the National Aeronautic Association with an average speed of 278.13 miles an hour for the distance but her husband, who greeted her said she had actually flown 230 miles at an average of almost 300 miles per hour, deviating from an airline course.

Pushes Way Through Crowds. "I'm hot," she announced as she emerged from the cockpit to push her way through the crowds and change to clothing more suited to Miami's warm weather.

Miss Cochran established a woman's international three-kilometer record of 293.05 miles per hour at Detroit last September 21.

'OR BREAK MY NECK,' HAINES PROPHESIED MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 3.—(AP)—Frank Haines, Detroit racing pilot killed in a race here today, was quoted by friends as having said last night: "I am going to win" some money in this meet or break my neck trying."

Haines was forced out of the Thompson trophy race, carrying the richest purse in American air racing, at Cleveland last September, and finished out of the money in the Greve race which preceded it.

mark of 5 hours, 1 minute was established by Wedell but Frank Haines flew here from East Hartford, Conn., in four hours, 55 minutes last April.

Miss Cochran flew a ship designed and built by Major Alexander de Seversky, who took off from Floyd Bennett field in a similar plane nine minutes after she did today and set a new record for a flight to Havana of five hours and two minutes, clipping two hours off the old mark made by Hawks in 1931.

Wittman Wins Fatal Race. S. J. Wittman, of Oshkosh, Wis., won the Silva $1,000 trophy race which brought death to Haines and Kling. A second feature event, the Green trophy race, went to Art Carnahan, of Bloomington, Ill., who piloted a plane owned by Bob Davis, also of Bloomington.

The top speed of the day, 170.36 miles an hour, was far below the marks for similar races established in this country since the inauguration of supervised racing. The panoply associated with American air racing—delayed parachute drops, stunting and precision aerobatics by groups of planes—was augmented by "bat wing" aerobatics at the end of the race in tow of an airplane. Will Kuhn, Upper Sandusky, Ohio, inventor of the maneuver, displayed his wares for the crowd.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Dec. 3.—(AP)—Richard Archbold, of the American Museum of Natural History, took off from San Diego bay at 2:35 p. m. (4:35 p. m. Atlanta time) today in his 14-ton flying boat on a transcontinental flight of 2,250 miles to Miami, Fla.

He hoped to reach Miami in 14 hours, non-stop.

Inclusion Demanded. One proposal before the subcommittee was that, at least, income from such sources should be included in a taxpayer's income tax return, thereby increasing the total reported and consequently raising to higher levels the rates levied upon the taxable portions of his income.

Chairman Smith, Democrat, South Carolina, of the senate agriculture committee, today proposed to give cotton farmers their three-cent federal subsidy at once and at the same time keep 1937 loan cotton from depressing the market price.

He said he would offer an amendment to the pending farm bill to permit farmers to obtain the subsidy by transferring to the government ownership of cotton on which they have obtained federal loans. The loans range up to nine cents a pound.

Time Extended. Under the present loan and subsidy plan, farmers are required to dispose of their loan cotton by July 1, 1938, to receive the subsidy. The farm bill as it is now written would extend the time to July 1, 1939.

G. M. Hailey, W. H. Pope Dismissed From Force by Committee.

Two city policemen, found guilty of charges by the police committee of city council early this morning, were dismissed from the force, while another was suspended for 29 days.

Patrolman G. M. Hailey, charged with neglect of duty, and Patrolman W. H. Pope, charged with being absent without leave, were dismissed.

Found guilty of "mooching" cigarettes from a Moreland avenue delicatessen shop, Patrolman R. D. Scott was ordered suspended for 29 days.

Trial of Patrolman A. Douglas Poole on charges of being drunk were postponed pending the return to the city of Mrs. Poole, who made the charges.

The trial of Patrolman J. M. Jones on a similar charge was also postponed.

Edwards' proposals to stimulate private home-building should be accompanied by repeal of the tax on undistributed surpluses of mortgage corporations.

Edward A. MacDougall, New York, chairman of the association's finance committee, told the senate banking committee that the undistributed profits tax handicapped mortgage associations which must build up reserves.

Paul E. Stark, Madison, Wis., president of the Real Estate Boards' Association, told the committee he believed private capital would invest in housing for a net return of 3 3/4 per cent.

Douglas Outlines Program. Lewis Douglas, former director of the budget, outlined a broad recovery program today to a secret luncheon conference of 10 Democratic and Republican senators.

The senators gathered at the invitation of Senator Byrd, Democrat, Virginia, to hear the views of Douglas, now an officer of the American Cynamid Company.

Byrd refused to discuss the conference, but the senators said Douglas had outlined a comprehensive program for restoring confidence to industry. This included early tax revision, balanced budget and expanded foreign trades. Because of the secrecy with which the luncheon was arranged, they would not go into details.

Other developments:

Senator King, Democrat, Utah, announced he would offer tomorrow amendments to a pending tax bill which would cut the undistributed surplus tax to 40 per cent and reduce the capital gains tax one-half.

The congressional tobacco bloc led the fight to defeat the Boileau amendment to remove referendum provisions from the house farm bill. Representative Cooley, Democrat, North Carolina, tobacco bloc leader, declared the referendum gave farmers the right to vote on whether they wanted control. Shortly thereafter, a number of minor amendments offered by Representative Flannagan, Democrat, Virginia, were adopted, chief of which was one to provide the tobacco referendum be held by secret ballot.

Senator Walsh, Democrat, Massachusetts, said senators from wool and potato-producing sections would oppose the amendment to the farm bill to limit importations of jute. Walsh said the amendment, proposed by Senators Bankhead, Democrat, Alabama, and Russell, Democrat, Georgia, would increase the cost of farm production and be "a serious blow to the jute manufacturing industry of Massachusetts."

William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, disclosed the federation will urge upon congress a drastic wage-hour bill with formidable teeth. The measure would provide a flat minimum wage of 40 cents an hour, and a flat minimum work week of 40 hours, for workers engaged in interstate businesses. If an employee violated the law, the worker would simply report to the nearest representative of the Justice Department, and that department would prosecute the employer, Green explained.

FORD COTTON PLAN CALLED 'MOCKERY'

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—(AP)—R. E. Short, president of the Arkansas Farm Bureau Federation, said tonight the Ford amendment to the house farm bill "makes a mockery of efforts to write a sound and adequate measure which will help the cotton farmers and all agriculture."

'It's in the Box' For 3 Judges In Murder Play

Three Atlanta judges last night traded the dignity of the bench for the responsibility of the jury box when Judge Virlyn B. Moore, Judge Paul Etheridge Sr., and Recorder J. L. Cone sat on the jury at the trial of Karen Andre, on the stage of Commercial High School auditorium.

It was all a play, but Judges Moore, Etheridge and Cone and their nine fellow jurors were required to hand down an unhears verdict on the basis of the evidence of what happened "on the night of January 16."

A revolutionary type of murder play in which the jury is picked from the audience, "On the Night of January 16," was last night presented by the teachers of Commercial High, under the sponsorship of the P.-T. A.

Another message from the Potomac late today said the President and his seven fishing companions trolled again this afternoon.

Responding to newspapermen's requests, Secretary James Roosevelt said the catch of the President and the others to date included barracuda, mackerel, skipjack, ladyfish, yellowtail and blue runner.

"Have kept no statistics on size and weight, largely to eliminate all possible arguments," he added in answer to queries about the "prize" fish caught by Robert H. Jackson, assistant attorney general.

The message said the President completed work on his mail brought to him by seaplane from Miami during the morning and the plane took off again at 12:50 p. m.

"All out fishing this afternoon," it concluded.

GAINESVILLE DELAYS DEDICATION AGAIN

GAINESVILLE, Fla., Dec. 3.—(AP)—The city of Gainesville will postpone dedication of its memorial to President Roosevelt "until such time as he can attend," Edgar B. Dunlap, chairman of the dedication committee, said tonight.

Ceremonies were planned for December 8 to unveil a memorial to the President on "Roosevelt Square," the section federal funds helped rebuild from wreckage of a tornado in April, 1936.

Previously planned for Thanksgiving Day, with the President as principal speaker, the ceremony was postponed when Mr. Roosevelt cancelled his planned trip to Warm Springs.

A message from the President's secretary, Marvin McIntyre, early this week from Miami caused rescheduling of the dedication for next Wednesday.

"We are sorry the President's illness continues," Dunlap said, "and wish him a speedy recovery."

W. J. BERES DEATH RULED A 'SUICIDE'

DeKalb Grand Jury Returns Verdict.

A verdict of suicide was returned yesterday by a DeKalb county coroner's jury in the death of William J. Beres, 42, cashier of Courts & Co. since 1925, who was found shot in the head Thursday night on North Decatur road, near Clairmont road.

Beres was discovered slumped over the steering wheel of his parked car by Patrolman north B. Curtis and J. C. Holbrook. A note which police described as "purely personal" was found near the body. Beres had been ill recently, police learned.

Beres lived at 2545 Potomac avenue, Peachtree Heights. Funeral plans will be announced by H. M. Patterson & Son.

SANITY DOUBTED

Kidnap Trial Halted to Test Defendant's Mind.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., Dec. 3.—(AP)—Trial of Franz Hanawald for the kidnaping of Julius Redlich, wealthy Wingdale (N. Y.) wine importer and resort owner, came to a sudden adjournment today when a commission was appointed to examine the defendant's sanity.

3-POINT TAX PLAN IS SEEN BY RIVERS

did not say that a gross income tax or a sales tax was likely to be considered.

Belief for Rich, Poor.

The gist of his remarks were that the assembly appeared to be ready to reform the tax situation so that the poor would be given relief through homestead exemptions and the rich would be given relief through the classification of intangibles. The intangible bill also seeks to get on the tax books millions of dollars worth of properties allegedly not now reported.

Later, Senate President John B. Spivey said he is still confident that the assembly will adjourn and be home for Christmas, three weeks from today.

Legislative observers were insistent that in addition to the homestead exemption proposals, the intangible classification and one or two other Rivers "must" bills, only so-called "stop-gap" legislation could be enacted in such a brief time.

In the two weeks the assembly has been in session, no major bill has been passed by both houses. The house and the senate each have passed major bills, but the only measures reaching the Governor's desk have been local bills.

Rivers' Statement.

In his statement yesterday, Governor Rivers said:

"I submitted to the assembly two alternative plans, worked out by those skilled in tax revision and who have been working on it for several weeks."

"One plan called for the abolition of the state ad valorem tax and certain licenses and occupational taxes and substitution therefor of some form of a transaction tax either gross income, gross receipts or a retail sales tax."

"The other plan called for retention of the state ad valorem tax, consolidation of the tax collecting agencies of the state, elimination of duplication and overlapping, tightening up on utility assessments, revision of the general tax act and certain special taxes."

"The latter plan was designated for convenience as the Martin plan, as it was largely drafted by Dr. John M. Martin, state tax commissioner of Kentucky."

Contemplate Revision.

"Each plan contemplated a revision of intangible taxes and elimination of ad valorem taxes on household furniture and homes. The assembly is going forward with the elimination of these ad valorem taxes on household furniture and homes and the revision of intangible taxes. These three items alone form a great forward step in fundamental tax revision."

"It is frankly stated by Dr. Martin that in the event his plan is put in effect it will take from 18 months to two years to feel the full benefits of it."

"Of that reason, if the assembly adopts the Martin plan, which it apparently feels inclined to do, it must of necessity provide some temporary measures to finance the budget pending the full benefits of his plan."

Adjourn Until Monday.

Both houses adjourned yesterday until Monday.

Although supported by Speaker Roy Harris, a bill to repeal the maintenance tax on trucks and buses was tabled by the house, for the present at least. The tax, enacted early this year, has come in for much criticism.

Opponents of the bill said its repeal would leave trucks and buses paying little tax and cut off an appreciable flow of revenue to the treasury. Harris disputed this view.

F. D. R. VACATIONS HELD 'RUNAWAYS'

Solon Compares President to Boy and Firecracker.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—(AP)—Representative Hoffman, Republican, Michigan, compared President Roosevelt's vacation trips today to the boy who lights a firecracker "and then runs away."

He said, in a speech prepared for the Congressional Record, that in 1933, "when the country was faced by a great national crisis, he took a warship or two and sailed to the Pacific."

"Last spring," he said, "when John L. Lewis and his CIO raised hell" by taking possession of the factories in Michigan and helped start this depression on its way, the President went down to Warm Springs.

"This time, with William Green, of the AFL, and John L. Lewis, staging a pitched battle in Washington," the President, having called congress back in special session because it did not jump through the hoops he provided last summer, finding, when we get here, that his plans and schemes have miscarried, digs out on another vacation."

ROAD FUND SLASH CUTS PARTY LINE

Democrats Join Opposition to F. D. R. Proposal.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—(AP)—Dissatisfaction with President Roosevelt's proposal to curtail federal highway expenditures spread today to the ranks of Democratic senate leaders.

Chairman Harrison, Democrat, Mississippi, of the senate finance committee, disagreed with President on the issue and declared there was no possibility of congress approving the cut.

In a telegram to Governor Hu White, of Mississippi, Harrison said that rescinding authorizations of road grants to states would violate a contract obligation, and added: "So far as it is within my power, federal aid for roads as already guaranteed by law will be carried out."

Even prior to Harrison's statement it had been apparent that Roosevelt touched a sensitive congressional spot when he proposed sharp reduction of federal highway aid. The issue has cut across party lines, a number of Democratic senators opposing the President while Senator Vandenberg, Republican, Michigan, voiced support.

BYRON SHAW HELD IN LIQUOR CHASE

agents of the federal alcohol unit, Marshall was bound over on the same charge.

The pair was charged with blocking for a liquor car which contained 206 gallons of non-tax paid whisky. Officers who participated in the chase said Shaw and Marshall drove about 50 yards behind the liquor car in an effort to prevent them from making an arrest. The driver of the liquor car escaped.

James E. Smith, night marshal at Cumming, said he fired a signal shot as the cars passed through the town but that they failed to stop. "I see the same cars often nearly every night going both ways," Smith said.

Stopped, Says Shaw.

Shaw denied that he knew anyone was trying to stop him. He said the car in front of him speeded up as they passed through Cumming and that when someone began to shoot "I began to step on it myself." He said he stopped as soon as he heard a siren blowing.

The two posted bond and were taken back to Cumming by officers. The hearing was held before United States Commissioner E. S. Griffith.

GROWS NEW HAIR ON BALD SPOTS

The un-retouched photographs which appear below show how Mr. Thomas re-grew hair for Mr. Parsley. "When I started Thomas' treatment, I had a number of bald spots on my scalp. My hair was dry and brittle and my scalp was covered with dandruff. After taking your treatment, natural oil has been restored, and the bald spots completely filled with a new growth of hair." Mr. Parsley's hair-loss was caused by alopecia areata, one of the 14 local scalp illnesses which come within the scope of Thomas' treatment.

Scalp Examination Free

More than a quarter-million persons have ended scalp worries by the reliable, proved Thomas' method of treatment. For you, too, Thomas can overcome bald spots, stop abnormal hair-fall, dandruff, stop abnormal hair-fall, and re-grow hair on thin and bald spots. No charge is ever made for complete scalp examination (in private) nor for consultation. Come in today and learn the truth about your hair and scalp.

ALIEN INVESTORS IN SPAIN MAY WIN PROPERTY CLAIMS

War-Time Decree Modification Seen in Story Passed by Censors.

MADRID, Dec. 3.—(P)—The remote prospect of foreign investors being compensated for their Spanish property seized at the outbreak of the civil war appeared slightly nearer today.

Madrid newspapers published a Barcelona dispatch predicting modification of the wartime collectivization decree. No authority was given for the prediction, but its passage by the censor was regarded as significant.

The Barcelona dispatch cited the decree of French courts at Montpellier recognizing the sovereign rights of the Spanish government over the Catalonian potassium mines at Suria. As a result of this, the dispatch said, the collectivization decree was certain to be modified to recognize the rights of owners—whether private or corporate—to collect indemnity for seized or collectivized property.

In Madrid it was explained this modification would not apply to property seized from Spaniards condemned as Fascists during the present conflict. The extent of these seizures was indicated by last week's announcement that the government expects to collect some $2,500,000 yearly from such property in Madrid alone.

ARTILLERY BOMBARDS

CITY OF MADRID
HENDAYE, Franco-Spanish Frontiers, Dec. 3.—(P)—The Spanish Insurgents opened a heavy artillery bombardment of Madrid today, advances reaching the frontier said.

BIG POWERS WATCH SMALL NAVY SHIPS

Experts Say Little Nations Might Balance Battle.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—(P)—Small navies of the world are getting lots of attention from the experts of the big countries these days, a Navy Department official said today. Experts believe the small ones might be a deciding factor in a major conflict.

Evidence of the attention devoted by the United States to small navies is the fact that this country has naval attaches accredited to Holland, Belgium, Portugal, Norway, Denmark, Sweden, Finland, Argentina, Uruguay, Brazil, Peru, Guatemala, Chile, Colombia, Venezuela and Panama.

It was pointed out that the Swedish navy, although small, is one of the most efficient in the world.

Holland is improving her navy in an effort to protect the Dutch East Indies.

The Australian navy has a standing strength of 4,300 men, a reserve of 5,000, with 20,000-ton cruisers and many smaller ships. The New Zealanders have two cruisers.

South American navies include a number of big battleships and modern cruisers. Argentina has two 28,000-ton battleships, Brazil two 19,200-tonners and Chile a 28,000-tonner.

Scores Visiting Wax Show Here To Aid 'Brothers'

Developments moved rapidly yesterday in the Big Brother army as scores of persons visited the wax exhibit at 60 Peachtree, where lifelike figures of such noted men of history as Woodrow Wilson and Teddy Roosevelt are on display.

Through the co-operation of H. B. Maxey, owner of the exhibit, the Big Brothers receive a percentage of the receipts.

Meanwhile, plans were completed for a program at 8:05 o'clock tonight over station WATL, sponsored by Post No. 112, Jewish War Veterans, under command of Harry Wengrow.

Added impetus also was given the drive to make this Christmas the happiest of all as John Blick donated a handsome cup, which will be awarded the organization which sells the greatest number of tickets to the Big Brothers charity ball, to be held December 22 in the Shrine Mosque.

Tickets to the ball cost 50 cents. They may be obtained simply by telephoning the Big Brothers headquarters at Main 4610. A messenger will deliver the tickets.

Mike Gilleland, chairman of the paper sale committee, sounded a clarion call for all Big Brothers to get into the front-line trenches and help the drive for funds go over the top.

"If you haven't filled out your coupon," he said, "do so at once. Either mail it or drop by the headquarters at 58 Peachtree street. Or telephone the drive headquarters and we'll have the coupon picked up."

NEW HIGH COMMAND PUT IN PALESTINE

Sir Harold Alfred Michael Named as Chief.

LONDON, Dec. 3.—(P)—Sir Harold Alfred Michael, veteran African administrator, tonight was appointed high commissioner and commander-in-chief for troubled Palestine and high commissioner for Trans-Jordan.

He will succeed General Sir Arthur Grenfell Wauchope, whose resignation on account of poor health was made known October 28. The colonial office announced the new appointment would become effective at the end of February.

MacMichael, who has been governor and commander-in-chief of Tanganyika territory, East Africa, since 1934, will succeed to the task of restoring peace to the Holy Land, where the long conflict of Arab and Jew has produced nearly two years of violence and bloodshed.

MacMichael has been in British government service in Africa 32 years and was intelligence and political officer of the British expedition which in November, 1918, reoccupied Darfur, in the western Anglo-Egyptian Sudan, after a native uprising.

CONFEDERATE SCOUT DIES AT AGE OF 88

BETHLEHEM, Miss., Dec. 3.—(P)—John C. Laws, scout for General Nathan Bedford Forrest during the War Between the States, died last night at his home here. He was 88.

To young to enlist as a soldier, Laws served the Confederacy as a scout, his youth enabling him to slip through federal lines and obtain military information.

No matter how many medicines you have tried for your cough, chest cold, or bronchial irritation, you can get relief now with Creomulsion. Serious trouble may be brewing and you cannot afford to take a chance with any remedy less potent than Creomulsion, which goes right to the seat of the trouble and aids nature to soothe and heal the inflamed mucous membranes and to loosen and expel the germ-laden phlegm. Even if other remedies have failed, don't be discouraged, try Creomulsion. Your druggist is authorized to refund your money if you are not thoroughly satisfied with the benefits obtained from the very first bottle. Creomulsion is one word—not two, and it has no hyphen in it. Ask for it plainly, see that the name on the bottle is Creomulsion, and you'll get the genuine product and the relief you want. (Ad.)

EXPERT SAYS TVA NOT OBEYING LAW

Technician Testifies Cost of Power Equipment Is Not Justified.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Dec. 3.—(P)—Testimony by expert technicians at the Tennessee Valley Authority's unified system was designed "primarily for power production" continued to the company attack on the Authority before a three-judge federal court.

Albert S. Crane, consulting engineer of New York, asserted, in stressing power development, "Directors of the Authority are not carrying out the TVA program in accordance with law."

"Had I been commissioned to design a plan primarily for development of the Tennessee river and its tributaries for the maximum production of power," he said, "I would have designed a system similar to the TVA system."

"At each dam is a large space for machinery and the storage of water for power purposes; the cost of the entire plan is much greater than the total necessary for a primary navigation and flood control project."

FINANCIAL REPORT IS MADE BY UNION

Only Statement of Kind Ever Issued, Says CIO Affiliate.

NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—(P)—The International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, an affiliate of the CIO and one of the nation's largest labor organizations, made public today a fiscal statement for the year 1936 showing total receipts and disbursements of more than $5,000,000 and a net balance of close to $1,000,000.

The union's general office expressed the belief this "is the only statement of its kind ever issued by a national trade union in the United States, giving the general public full picture of its business side."

Included in the disbursements was $445,900 in donations and relief; $496,310 in strike expenses and relief; $129,131 in educational activities; $144,346 in administrative expenses, including $788,670 in office staff salaries; and $2,487,839 in organizational expenses, including $911,760 paid out in salaries to organizing managers, business agents, et cetera.

REPORT NOT PROMPTED BY NEW POLICY

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—(P)—Publication of a detailed financial statement in New York by the CIO-International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union was not prompted by new broad policy on union finances, officials of the Committee for Industrial Organization said here today.

'IT'S UP TO ME NOW,' SAYS FANNY BRICE

Eleanor Denies She Said She'd Marry Rose.

NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—(P)—The Holm-Rose romance reached the stage tonight on the part of the beautiful swimming star, Miss Holm, dismissed the divorce charges of her husband, Arthur Jarrett, as "so childish I wouldn't even talk about them."

"All I want to do is quiet it down, let it die," Miss Holm said, with an angry swish of her clinging white negligee. "I'm sorry it ever happened."

Reminded she was quoted in Denver as saying she was going to marry Rose, she snapped: "I did not."

Los Angeles Rose's wife, Fanny Brice, the 46-year-old star, famous for her singing of "My Man," read of Jarrett's divorce charge that his wife's "conduct with another man has caused him to be held up to public contempt," said:

"Well, that checks it up to me." Then she added, "No, I haven't talked to Mr. Rose or a lawyer. I've got to figure this thing out."

"It's a fine way for two people to be gallivanting around the country together. I'm not used to that sort of thing. I guess it's what you call modern."

CLOUDY, PROBABLY RAIN AND WARMER FORECAST

Increasing cloudiness and warmer temperatures probably will bring rain to Atlanta today, the weatherman predicted yesterday.

"Saturday will be cloudy and there probably will be rain," the weatherman said as he predicted low temperature reading of 36 degrees for this morning. The mercury yesterday ranged between 29 and 53 degrees.

Heavy frost extended to Thomasville yesterday morning and temperatures were somewhat lower in almost all the Atlantic states and some parts of Alabama, Tennessee, Kentucky and West Virginia, the weather bureau announced.

Laborer Goes to Jail To Prevent Vaccination

CARLISLE, Pa., Dec. 3.—(P)—A day laborer who feared vaccination would impair his children's health was sent to jail today for refusing to have a seven-year-old son given the treatment.

John March, of Gardners, Route 2, was sentenced to five days in jail by Justice of the Peace Dosh, who said the sentence will be renewed each five days until March relents. He served eight months that way four years ago for keeping a son away from school—and the doctor who would vaccinate him.

Foreign Mission Funds Collected at Tabernacle

Offerings for the Lottie Moon Fund, a Southern Baptist Christmas contribution for foreign missions, were collected at the Tabernacle Baptist church yesterday afternoon by, left to right, Mrs. Frank Bettis, a circle leader in the Woman's Missionary Society; Mrs. P. A. Williams, president, and Mrs. William E. Young, wife of Tabernacle's associate pastor. This meeting marked the close of the annual Week of Prayer, for foreign missions.

TEACHER DIVORCES 'WED-AND-TELL' MAN

Atlantan Contends Publicity Over Marriage Caused Her Dismissal.

Final divorce decree was won yesterday by Mrs. Nell Smith Jones, former Fulton school teacher who charged her husband revealed their secret marriage to school authorities, as marital ties of 24 other couples were severed in Fulton superior court.

Forty-six other plaintiffs appeared before Judges Hugh M. Dorsey and Paul S. Etheridge to obtain uncontested first decrees.

Married July 4, 1934, Mrs. Jones and her husband maintained separate establishments for three years, the plaintiff set forth, and began living together July 1 of this year. They were separated August 15.

She charged he had told school authorities of their marriage, causing her discharge, subjected her to cruel treatment and told her he loved another woman. He denied the first charge in a cross-petition. In granting the final decree Judge Dorsey decreed Jones could remarry at will. No alimony was asked.

Exports of Food Gain 56 Per Cent Over Last Year

Food exports from the United States during October were 45 per cent larger than in September and 56 per cent above such shipments during October of 1936, according to figures released yesterday by W. H. Schroeder, district manager of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce.

Among items which showed sharp seasonal gains were canned sardines, wheat, raisins, dried apples, prunes and soybeans. These and other increases brought the 10 months' food products export volume to $211,990,000, as compared with $174,831,000 during the first 10 months of 1936, a gain of 21.2 per cent.

Vegetable products and beverages were largely responsible for the jump, it was pointed out. Edible animal products declined slightly during the 10 months' period.

GOVERNMENT LOSES CEMENT TRUST TILT

Witness Not Allowed To Tell of Bid Decline.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—(P)—Counsel for the Federal Trade Commission failed today in an effort to show that a sharp decrease in cement prices followed discussion of the possibility the government might grant the ouster of the Grand Coulee project in the far west.

Walter B. Oden, commission attorney, asked P. I. Taylor, assistant chief engineer of the Bureau of Reclamation if a decrease in bids from $2.67 to $1.92 a barrel did not follow talk that the government might grant its own cement. John W. Norwood, trial examiner, ruled Taylor not competent to answer the question because he had no personal knowledge of it.

George T. Lemmon, purchasing agent for the Virginia State Highway Commission, and Arthur Colegrove, secretary of the Department of Property and Supplies of Pennsylvania, expressed belief there was no competition in the cement industry.

The Trade Commission is conducting a hearing on its charge that the cement institute and 75 cement manufacturers entered into a combination to eliminate price competition, using the basing point or delivered price system as the principal means of bringing about uniform prices.

PHENIX CITY, Ala., Dec. 3.—(P)—Burns resulting when her clothing caught fire proved fatal to Mrs. Effie Mae Shira at Community hospital here late last night, several hours after she was admitted for treatment.

Constitution of United States Outlined for Essay Contest

By WILLIAM W. BREWTON,
Director, State Sesquicentennial Commission.

Article 6. The Pinckney Plan.

The star mystery of all American history is what became of the original draft of the plan for a constitution submitted to the convention by Charles Pinckney, of South Carolina. Madison's Journal says that immediately after presentation by Governor Randolph of the Virginia plan, on May 29, Charles Pinckney "laid before the house the draft of a federal government which he had prepared to be agreed upon between the free and independent states of America." Madison then presented the text of this plan.

He says in a note, however, that he did not examine the paper handed in by Mr. Pinckney at the time, and later got his text of it from the copy used in the official journal kept by the secretary.

The plan printed in both journals, however, were necessarily edited handling of the hundreds of essays expected from grammar and high school children throughout the state. Entries should be postmarked before midnight, December 22, in order to be eligible for the silver trophy and three cash prizes offered.

Contestants may use any reference desired on either of two subjects—"The Formation and Ratification of the Constitution of the United States," or "The Men Who Made Our United States Constitution."

This limitation is to encourage conciseness and clarity and to facilitate handling of the hundreds of essays expected from grammar and high school children throughout the state. Entries should be postmarked before midnight, December 22, in order to be eligible for the silver trophy and three cash prizes offered.

Contestants may use any reference desired on either of two subjects—"The Formation and Ratification of the Constitution of the United States," or "The Men Who Made Our United States Constitution."

AMISH WIN FIGHT AGAINST PWA FUND

Pennsylvania Agrees To Repeal Little Red Schools.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Dec. 3.—(P)—Appointed by a compromise to open five of the 10 little old school houses they fought to retain, Amish and Mennonite leaders went back to the central Pennsylvania tobacco farms tonight, where non-cult neighbors dedicated Smoketown's Consolidated school.

The compromise was reached after a lively session in Governor George H. Earle's office. The Governor is in Sweden, but members of his staff talked it out with school authorities and the "plain people."

Only the approval of the East Lampeter Township school board was needed to end the dispute, for the time at least.

The township authorities sought to close the one-room school because of the new $112,000 PWA-built school. The Amishmen objected. They withdrew their children from the school, which they called "worldly."

The board said the schools were in need of repair and that they didn't have the money to repair them. Today Governor Earle's secretary promised the state would pay the bill.

WATCHMAN ARRESTED AS WOUNDED MAN DIES

Thomas Frazier, 27, of 303 Woodward avenue, S. W., died yesterday morning in Grady hospital of bullet wounds suffered Thursday night in an affray at Windsor street and Whitehall street.

J. M. Bannard, 61, of Oakdale road, Cobb county, a night watchman at a used car lot near the scene, was arrested on a charge of suspicion. Funeral arrangements will be announced by J. Austin Dillon.

5-Year-Old Kills Mother While Playing With Gun

APALACHICOLA, Fla., Dec. 3.—(P)—Mrs. Francis Bloodworth was killed in a bedroom of her home in Apalachicola today by the accidental discharge of a gun in the hands of her 5-year-old son, Dickey, police reported.

The bullet entered her left shoulder and penetrated the right shoulder.

The child was playing with a gun belonging to his father, an Apalachicola policeman.

BLACK LEGION CHIEF SURRENDERS IN OHIO

Virgil Effinger Gives Up Fight Michigan Syndicalism Charges.

LIMA, Ohio, Dec. 3.—(P)—Police Virgil H. (Bert) Effinger, 52-year-old accused head of the Black Legion, surrendered here today to fight charges of criminal syndicalism filed against him in Michigan.

The bald former electrical contractor thus ended a 15-month period of elusiveness since walked out of an extradition hearing in Columbus on August 2, 1936, and disappeared.

Police Chief Taylor said he and Deputy Sheriff Ford drove to Effinger home and sounded the horn of their automobile. Effinger appeared with his daughter, Marjorie, and the four drove to police headquarters.

Taylor said Marjorie asked her father: Well, dad, does everything look natural? and that he inferred Effinger had not been in Lima for some time.

Effinger obtained his release under a $1,000 bond on a writ habeas corpus.

Judge Everett also granted an injunction preventing other law officers from arresting Effinger on charges of criminal syndicalism and possession of bombs, which he already is charged.

On August 28, 1936, Governor Davey, of Ohio, authorized Effinger's extradition to Wayne county, Michigan, to face syndicalism and bomb possession charges. The Governor's office said tonight the extradition warrants still were in effect.

ATLANTANS' WORKS TO BE SHOWN TODAY

Tea at High Museum Will Open Exhibit of Paintings, Sculpture.

An exhibition of paintings and sculpture by members of the Studio Club and the Artists' Guild of Atlanta will open with a tea at the High Museum of Art, from 2 to 5 o'clock this afternoon. The exhibition will be on view at the museum throughout the month.

Atlanta artists whose work will be on display are:

Leola Beckett, Abelard Lois Hall, Marjorie C. Bush-Brown, Kitty Butler, Rose Cohn, Joseph Lee Edwards, Adelaide Everhart, Meredith Gelder, Martha J. Gramling, Julian H. Harris, Emory Jackson, Frank Mack, Mrs. Jenny G. Mohan, Dr. George H. Noble, Jr., R. Kennon Perry, George Ramsey, Mrs. Robert E. Rogers, Mrs. E. W. Williams, Virginia Haire, Mrs. Marie E. Williams, Be. E. Shute, Maurice Siegle and Mrs. R. W. Smith.

STOKOWSKIS DIVIDE DAUGHTERS' TIME

Children, Under Divorce, To Go With Each Parent.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 3.—Leonard Stokowski, noted orchestra conductor, will have alternate charge with his wife of their two young daughters under yesterday's divorce decree, which indicated a property and custody agreement reached October 8.

In Philadelphia, Stokowski said he signed the agreement with the understanding in which counsel concurred—that he and his wife have joint custody of the children.

Luke McNamee, Mrs. Stokowski's lawyer, said "The agreement provides she will have the children part of the time and he part of the time."

He would not give details of the custody and provision for support of the children, however. All papers in the case at Las Vegas were sealed. First reports indicated Mrs. Stokowski received sole custody of the daughters, Gloria Luba, 10, and Andrea Sadja, 6.

Stokowski deplored the cruelty charge on which his wife won her uncontested decree, saying "I could not be cruel to anyone, so I certainly could not be cruel to my children or their mother."

PLANE DEBRIS FOUND, FLIERS STILL LOST

NORFOLK, Va., Dec. 3.—(P)—The additional wreckage from a navy scouting plane which crashed into the Atlantic off Virginia Beach Wednesday washed ashore today, but searchers found no trace of the two men the craft apparently carried down with it.

The lower left aileron and a wing section were retrieved from points on the beach about two miles apart, diminishing hope of finding the flyers.

"Meet me at the Soda Fountain"

COMPLETE REVISION OF PRISON SYSTEM OUTLINED IN BILLS

Laws To Be Presented in Senate Monday Will Modernize Methods.

A complete revision of Georgia's prison system will be effected if the bills to be submitted in the state senate Monday by Senators Lindsay, Purdon, Blackhear, and L. Lindsay, of Decatur, are accepted by the general assembly. The bills, already drawn and ready to be introduced, follow the plan of prison reform advocated by Governor Rivers and the Federal Prison Industries Administration, which recently completed a survey of prison conditions in Georgia.

Passage of the bills would mean the death of the Georgia chain gang and the institution of a modern prison system of public works camps.

Child Marriages.

Announcement that the bills will be offered Monday came yesterday after a day of activity in both the house and senate where a number of new bills were introduced, including one affecting child marriages in Georgia, and another to place a 15 per cent tax on all certificates to build a $300,000 dental college in Augusta.

Toured State.

Lindsay and Purdon, who are to offer the prison reform bills, are members of the senate prison investigating committee, and have toured the state to inspect prisons and camps since the last legislative session.

The ten bills are designed: (1) to change the name and duties of the state parole commission; (2) to amend the present parole law to eligibility rules will be determined by the parole commission; (3) to create a station to board of penal administration (whose members would be paid only $7 a day while in session); (4) to remove the Governor and the chairman of the highway board as members of the prison commission; (5) to prohibit the sale of wine or beer and the operation of dance halls near penal institutions; (6) to give the board of penal administration authority to designate the place of execution. (The law designates Milledgeville now); (7) to authorize judges to fix sentences instead of juries as is now done; (8) to eliminate the words "chain gang" from all Georgia laws and to substitute "public works camp"; (9) to amend the appropriations bill to give the state parole commission $100,000 annually, and the board of penal administration a total of $540,000 per year, and (10) to authorize the Governor to name a citizens' committee to aid in educating the public on prison reform and to assist in the public relations of the penal board.

Prison Industries.

Senators Lindsay and Purdon said $100,000 would be set up in the new system to operate prison industries as recommended by the federal survey.

The revision would leave within the scope of the present prison commissioners the power of parole. Proponents of the reform declare millions of dollars will eventually be saved by paroling nearly half the prisoners who now serve time at state expense.

The change contemplates enlarging the parole staff to 275 men or so.

An important revision would be a change in parole eligibility rules to allow parole or probation to begin at the time of sentence. The indeterminate sentence would be abolished under the bill, giving judges the right to fix sentences.

The senators said they hoped the new system would practically eliminate the state women's prison, since most women convicts could be paroled or probated.

In the house yesterday, Representative Weaver, of Bibb, introduced a bill which would allow parents or relatives of child brides and grooms to sue the county ordinary if he failed to publish the pertinent facts concerning ages and residences as required by law. At present, the clerk of the superior court has that duty.

The ordinary would be subject to a $500 fine, which would be divided equally between the parent or relative suing and the county educational fund. Weaver said this would place "teeth" in the child marriage laws.

Dental College.

Representatives Erwin, of Lamar; Lanier, of Richmond; Latham, of Floyd; Hollis, of Morgan, and Marshall, of Macon, offered the house bill to tax dentists for the establishment of a dental college in the University System of Georgia at Augusta.

They proposed a 15 per cent tax on the retail price of tooth brushes, tooth paste, dental floss and all

FRANK A. McMULLAN.

ATLANTAN STAGES UNIVERSITY SHOW

Frank A. McMullan Directing 'Coronation' at Yale.

Frank A. McMullan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilson H. McMullan, of 1497 Sylvan road, Atlanta, is directing the Yale University theater's first production of the year, "Coronation," which opened in New Haven, Conn., last Wednesday night.

McMullan has been assistant professor of play production at Yale since he received his master's degree there in 1934. His first major production with the University theater was Thomas Job's dramatization of "Bar-chester Towers," which is now playing on Broadway.

"Coronation," into which McMullan has introduced musical accompaniment by the Yale Symphony orchestra, is Zelig Segal's tragic history of the Hapsburg Maximilian's ill-fated Mexican empire.

200-Mile Hike To Atlanta Starts In Bunion Derby

Four University of the South student hikers yesterday set out for Atlanta in a 200-mile endurance walk from Sewanee, Tenn. They call it the "bunion derby."

And the only thing that will keep them from reaching Atlanta is for "our feet to give out," they maintained as they left Sewanee.

Seventy hours have been allotted in which to complete the "walk." They say that is long enough "if it is physically possible to make the trip."

The four, one of whom is a Savannahian and another of whom is a member of the faculty's Alpine Club by virtue of a previous 95-mile "stroll" from Sewanee to Nashville, left Sewanee before sun-up yesterday headed in the general direction of Atlanta.

The proposed route will carry the boys through Chattanooga, LaFayette, Calhoun, Cartersville, Marietta to Atlanta.

They expect to complete the walk "sometime Sunday night."

Participants in the derby are Lee Bradford, of Savannah; David Rose and Charlie Robinson, of Nashville, and Dick Kirchhoffer, of Mobile, Ala.

Rose, the leader, said "There will be no sleeping and no riding."

WOMAN MOTORIST, 29, INDICTED IN KILLING

Adrienne Ellison, 29, was indicted yesterday for manslaughter in the death October 22 of Mrs. Lydia Dyson, as the Fulton grand jury returned true bills against 29 persons.

Miss Ellison was charged with running over and killing Mrs. Dyson at the intersection of Washington and Richardson streets. The indictment charged she was driving on the wrong side of the street and at an illegal rate of speed when she hit the victim, a pedestrian.

mouth washes and tooth powders to finance the college. Funds would accumulate to the amount of $300,000 to erect the buildings, and thereafter $75,000 a year would be allocated to operate the dental institution. Money over $75,000 per year would be allocated to the state welfare department. Dentures would be stamped as cigarettes now are.

Game, Fish Laws.

An investigation of "the truth of reports that game and fish laws are being violated in Georgia" was sought in a resolution in the house yesterday by Preston, of Bulloch. It declared certain fish hatchery ponds are "clogged with catfish" and other matter and so stocked with fish that the big ones are eating the little ones. A committee of three from the house and two from the senate to probe conditions was asked.

Senator Jeff Pope, of Cairo, offered a senate bill to revise the corporation law of the state, "to simplify the chartering of corporations and to keep big business from going to Florida and Delaware," Pope explained.

He said the bill was written by a group of lawyers in an effort to "bring the Georgia law in line with progress made in other states."

Representative Corbett, of Atkinson, placed a bill to tax rolling stores $200 per year in the house hopper.

Senator Howard Ennis, of Milledgeville, introduced two bills, one to repeal an act of 1902 fixing and prescribing the boundaries of land adjacent to or covered by or bordering on tidewaters of the state, and another to provide for reversion of title to the state of beds of all nonnavigable tidewaters in Georgia heretofore possessed by adjacent landowners.

FRANCE INCREASES BUDGET FOR ARMY

$46,050,174 Boost Voted as Foreign Minister Talks for Peace.

PARIS, Dec. 3.—(AP)—While France's foreign minister sought a new way to peace in eastern Europe the chamber of deputies today unanimously voted an increased army budget for 1938, and urged the government to strengthen frontier defenses.

The chamber voted the army budget credits of 7,932,878,285 francs (about $264,500,000), an increase of 1,381,505,231 francs (about $46,050,174) over this year's appropriations. Up for the chamber's approval is an extraordinary army budget of more than 5,550,000,000 francs (about $185,000,000), an increase of 1,136,500,000 francs (about $37,880,000).

The minister of national defense, Edouard Daladier, rejected as "impossible" a Communist proposal to reduce the two-year conscription term. He told the chamber that 387,000 French soldiers face 1,000,000 men on the German frontier and 300,000 on the Italian border in the southeast.

During debate on strengthening the Swiss border Daladier said France had spent some $1,650,000 on authorized defenses in the Jura mountains of Alsace.

The World War Versailles Treaty demilitarized the Franco-Swiss frontier, but Daladier assured parliament the government had adequate troops and equipment in the sector.

He declared, however, France would take no unilateral action to fortify the Juras illegally despite the temptation, "after so many violations of treaties, to raise unilaterally certain hypotheses forgotten by writers of the Versailles treaty."

DELLOS ARRIVES IN POLISH CAPITAL

WARSAW, Dec. 3.—(AP)—Yvon Delbos, French foreign minister, arrived here tonight on his tour of European capitals, and immediately paid a visit to Foreign Minister Joseph Beck.

They talked for an hour and a half, but their visit was said to have been of a purely social character. Political talks will start tomorrow.

G-MEN SAVE MONEY, SAYS EDGAR HOOVER

Accomplishments of Bureau
Reported and Chief Discusses Extent of Crime.

NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—(AP)—J. Edgar Hoover, director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, today announced "dividends" to taxpayers of $7 for every dollar spent on the bureau.

He said that during the last four years the cost of operating the FBI amounted to a little more than $18,000,000, while it was able to return "in savings, in fines, and in recoveries of stolen goods a total of more than $135,000,000, or more than $116,000,000 above what it costs to operate the bureau."

Hoover addressed the Association of Life Insurance Presidents. He took occasion to attack parole systems (excluding the federal), the failure of police units to cooperate in the collection of statistical data and criminal records, jail conditions, shyster lawyers, venal politicians, "kid glove treatment" of criminals and other weak spots in the American scene of police and court activity.

He said that during the last four years, of every 100 persons charged by G-men and tried, 94 were convicted.

He declared the "criminal army of America" was composed of 4,300,000 persons.

He estimated there were more than 13,000 cases of murder and manslaughter every year.

"American crime begins in the American home," Hoover said. "The only way it can be cured is by a re-establishment of respect for law by the heads of our homes."

SHIPWRECKED SAILOR ASKS FOR DAMAGES

NORFOLK, Va., Dec. 3.—(AP)—Konstantinos Palakas, third assistant engineer on the ill-fated Greek steamer Tzeny Chandris which sank November 13 off the coast of North Carolina with a loss of seven lives, instituted suit in federal district court today for damages for personal losses and injuries.

The admiralty suit, asking $7,300, was directed against John D. Chandris, owner of the vessel and a resident of Piraeus, Greece, and resulted in the attachment of another Chandris vessel, the Mari Chandris, now in Newport News loading scrap iron.

ATLANTA, GA., DECEMBER 4, 1937.

IN NORTHERN CHINA

Jack Belden, correspondent for the United Press who has witnessed a large part of the heavy fighting in North China, reports that the Chinese armies may be down "but they are by no means out" in that area.

Tokyo has proclaimed complete achievement of aims in the North China fighting. Claims have been made that the Japanese have "pacified" and completely control one-third of the area of China, containing one-fourth of its population.

The report by Belden, however, confirms the belief held by all familiar with the physical and national characteristics of China and the Chinese that it will be many decades, if ever, before Japan can fully bend great China to her will.

The Chinese are a peculiar people. Through all their long history they have been, apparently, easy prey for the warlike invader. From Genghis Khan to the present day, they have been unable to offer effective resistance to invasion. Yet, always, time has worked for the Chinese. The victors who have sought to enslave them have ended by being absorbed in that great population of 400,000,000. The swarming, teeming millions of China are like the ocean which may, for a distance, be pushed aside by the fresh waters from a great river but which, in the end, impregnates with its own salt everything that enters.

Japan, warlike but comparatively a small nation, may be tempting the same fate. Even though the armed resistance is smothered, there is always the bland, passive and mysterious Oriental who will go upon his individual way with philosophic smile, content to let time and the passing generations work out the solution.

HIPPOCRATES MARCHES ON

By the very nature of its art, the profession of healing achieves much of its progress unknown to the average layman. It is only occasionally that the world hears of the marvelous strides made by the modern followers of Hippocrates.

Such an occasion was the meeting of the Southern Medical Association held in New Orleans. From that gathering have come a succession of news stories that are almost like the dreams of a prophet, foretelling the marvels to be in some future golden age of mankind. Yet the things revealed are actual achievements today of the men who devote their lives to study and research in order that human suffering all over the earth may be reduced and that the span of man's earthly existence may be extended.

The story of "sigmadol" was revealed at New Orleans. This is a new drug that safely eliminates the pains that have, from the genesis of the human race, been the lot of women in childbirth. According to the report, sigmadol puts the prospective mother into peaceful sleep, during which she feels no pain, has no memory of past events. She sleeps, she awakens from two to ten hours later, and finds her baby safely born. That is all.

Then there is the discovery, also announced at New Orleans, that airplane screws, made of an alloy of magnesium and aluminum, may be used to fasten together broken bones of living man or woman. After the break has healed, the screws disintegrate, the magnesium passing into the bloodstream and so away and the aluminum likewise disappearing.

And that marvelous operation was described by which a portion of the brain is removed to cure athetosis, a fearful disease of the nerves. The profession of medicine and surgery is constantly adding new marvels to the discoveries of science. Operations, treatments and cures which would have been regarded as supernatural miracles just a few years ago, are today commonplace.

There is no group to which mankind owes more than the doctors and surgeons, who work without publicity, oftentimes without acclaim.

Anatomists have prepared charts showing the Dionne five are remarkably alike. And still they say that science wastes its time.

A Londoner suggests larger outlays for royal display, as he says they stimulate business. Er—would this be priming the pump?

The fear is voiced that internal schism may imperil the comeback of the G. O. P. Of course, a doghouse divided against itself cannot stand.

Novelist Hemingway confesses to fear. When smoke and falling plaster filled his lodgings in Madrid, every hair on the chest stood up.

Anyone who goes so far back in history he finds a Chinaman who had a chance is what is called an antiquarian.

Dr. Dafoe says the Dionnes are a bit skeptical of Santa Claus. And we suppose at first sight

Santa suspected the Dionnes were something done with mirrors.

A Harvard back is mentioned vaguely as an All-America possibility. Even if nothing comes of it, it is very democratic to have thought of it.

MOUNTING EXPORTS

There is relief for the surplus crop situation in this country in the increasing exports reported by the Commerce Department. In October, according to this report, the United States exported $3 worth of merchandise for every $2 in imports, giving this country a favorable trade balance for the first time this year.

The month showed the highest total of exports for any like period during the past seven years.

Not only did the year's bumper crops play an important role in the export picture, but they had a powerful secondary effect in reducing imports of agricultural products. With ample supplies in the domestic market, consumers found no need of seeking foreign-grown products for the United States market. Corn and vegetable oils, particularly, showed a drastic reduction in imports.

In past years America was chiefly an export nation, contributing large quantities of raw materials to the highly industrialized countries of the Old World, as well as foodstuffs for populations too large to live upon the yield of their own limited acres.

A return, even in part, to that former position in the picture of world trade, will have a happy effect upon the domestic economic situation and will aid in making conditions of life easier and more bountiful for the American workman and the American farmer.

DON'T EXPECT TOO MUCH

The regulations imposed by the Securities Exchange Commission upon the stock market and its customers will doubtless serve, to some degree, in protecting the unwary speculator, but that they will not protect everyone from loss is inevitable.

In fact, by the most elemental logic, it is essential that some who enter the market shall lose.

The average man who thinks to profit by an occasional "flyer" in the market should guard against too much dependence upon the paternal protection of the SEC regulations when he launches his financial argosy. There is danger that, reassured by a faith unwarranted, the innocent lambs may rush in ever greater droves to the shearing.

Men rushing into the market in the belief that they have found a bottomless well of profit, are not apt to pause long enough to read and understand the SEC regulations and to benefit by the SEC lessons in bookkeeping. Hence, while undoubtedly there will be some worth-while achievement toward greater safety for the investor, it will only result in disappointment if the general public expects too much. No regulations in the world can alter the fact that when a speculator risks his money for the sake of anticipated gain, he still risks it.

INDUSTRY UNDER DICTATORSHIP

There is food for serious thought in the description of the plight of an average manufacturer in Germany, as reported in a recent article by Raymond Clapper, written from Berlin. The article reveals what private industry may expect when government reaches the apogee of control, whether that autocratic dictatorship emanate from a single ruler or from too-powerful bureaucracy.

The manufacturer of whom Clapper speaks is, he says, engaged in producing goods which are neither for export nor for rearmament. Thus he cannot enjoy the special privileges extended in Germany to these two groups. It is pointed out that, under dictatorship in Germany, the individual, human and corporate, exists for the state, not the state for the individual. Clapper writes:

In Germany "the title to the manufacturing plant is left in the hands of the private owner but that is about all he retains. He has little control over his property. He must operate it at the direction of the state. The government fixes the wages he pays, the cost of his raw materials, his prices and, in many instances, the amount he can produce. It tells him whether he may enlarge his factory or not, and whether he may discharge his employees. It drastically limits his profits, because if he objects he is likely to find himself out on the sidewalk, if not worse. Criticism is practically treason. . . . If any businessman in America thinks he is having a hard time and longs for a Fascist dictator he is crazy. He would have no strike problem, but in place of that he would have a dozen problems that are worse."

America should observe the plight of industry in modern Germany and take warning in good time. Every added item of governmental control leads just that much nearer to industrial dictatorship. There is real danger of such outcome today, even in America.

Even with television, it would be necessary to buy a newspaper the morning after to see what it was you saw.

Editorial of the Day

TWO-BIT EPIQUES

(From the Memphis Commercial Appeal.)

"Some like one thing and some like another," as the southern mountaineer says, and "De gusbibus non disputandum est," as some ancient Latin first remarked before the real dawn of history. This is a free country, very free by comparison with most others, and so, if anyone desires to play the epicure with a two-bit snack at a quick-lunch counter, there is no law against it. That is, with the possible exception of some of the laws of fitness, common sense and keeping things separate.

At that, however, we wonder at the patience of the waitress who has to answer a dozen or so "expert" queries from the customer who is wavering between the Irish beef stew with vegetables, 25 cents, and the Mexican chili with beans, 15 cents, drink extra in each case. How should she know the life history of the stew or the chili with beans, and if she thought neither was any good, would she be likely to say so? Then, of course, it is always necessary for the two-bit epicure to find fault when his order arrives and to discover at least six things missing in the way of sauces, ketchup, relishes, etc. We should hardly blame the waitress if she heated the nickel tip and dropped it down the guy's neck.

With the practice of the intricate art of the gourmet there can be no quarrel, but it is not, perhaps, out of line to suggest that the dining room of the Ritz, with at least a $5 dinner, offers a setting more consonant than does the stool of a short-order cafe. The two-bit epicure is about as out of place as white kid gloves for a puddle duck, though perhaps the razzle-dazzle does feed his spirit more adequately than the stew does his body.

ON THE RECORD

By DOROTHY THOMPSON

Omen in Germany.

Germany is not united. She is divided. In most of the villages, the population is rent in twain, one part following the party leaders, the other following the local priest or pastor.

Seven per cent of all the Protestant pastors in Germany have either been imprisoned or taken into police custody since 1934.

From 12 to 15 per cent of the people are bitterly hostile to the ruling regime, and they are the very part—no would normally be pillars of the state.

The controlled press spreads egregious lies, and a large section of the population know it and do not believe a single word that emanates from an official source. A filthy anti-Christian propaganda is carried on by the state's forces.

Jesus is referred to as a "swine" and "a Jewish tramp."

Much of the youth is turning toward Christianity in revolt against this sort of teaching.

Immorality is condoned in the ranks of the party officials, while Christian priests and pastors are smeared with lies.

Many of the people most vigorously "heiling" Hitler might turn Bolshevik tomorrow.

The situation has become so serious that, should Germany have to mobilize for war, the internal division would constitute a serious threat to enthusiastic co-operation and victory.

This picture of the German situation is not a series of "atrocity stories," spread by German refugees, underground socialists, inaccurate foreign correspondents, or "Jewish newspapers." These accusations, which are stated in absolutely clear terms, appear in the most amazing document which has come out of Germany since the beginning of the Hitler regime. Most of the text of it was published in a New York newspaper on Sunday. And its authors are the chaplains of the German army! It is addressed to Fuehrer Hitler himself.

The importance of this document, which takes the form of a petition for a radical change of policy towards the church and towards religion, cannot be overestimated. It must be considered in connection with other events which have happened recently in Germany, and in the light of the traditional policy of the German army, ever since 1918.

That policy, initiated by General Beck, the founder of the modern German army, has been absolute neutrality in political and civilian affairs. The discipline of the army is perfect. The policy has been to serve with complete loyalty each and every legitimate government, Monarchial, Republican, or Nazi. Only once before, since Mr. Hitler became dictator, has the army interfered, and that was over a specific military issue: Whether the armed authority should be exclusively vested in the regular forces, or whether that authority should be shared with the political army of the storm troopers, under Captain Roehm.

We still remember the results of that conflict in the summer of 1934. It ended with the appalling "blood purge" in which Captain Roehm, and still unnumbered lesser storm troop leaders, as well as other uncomfortable political figures, were assassinated without trial, in a single night, and in the ensuing three or four days.

This new conflict is the more amazing, in that it does not arise over an immediate military issue. The whole issue is political.

But the army is learning, it seems, that the way the state uses its authority, and the atmosphere prevailing among the people, cannot remain a matter of indifference to the army. Some weeks ago, the officer in charge of the economic department of the war ministry, complained that there was over-training of the young people in the Nazi labor camps and youth organizations, and that, when they came up for military service, they were discouraged and down-trodden.

This petition of the chaplains says, in effect, that the officers of the state's armed forces cannot make a decent army out of people who feel contempt, dislike and even hatred for the authority of the state!

To think of this document as a petition from the army chaplains alone, is to misunderstand it. No one who knows the discipline of the German army will dream that this document was sent off to the Fuehrer by its religious mentors alone. There is a division in the ranks of the army itself, which would make the move even more momentous for Germany, than one must believe that the petition was inspired by, and has the support of, the general staff; that it represents the opinion, not only of the chaplains, but of Chief of Staff Beck, Commander in Chief General von Fritsch, and of the War Minister General von Blomberg. It is an outright, frontal attack of the army on the policies of the government, and it deals with far more than the religious issue, for it attacks the basic morality of the state's behavior.

I believe, also, that it cannot be dissociated with what has recently happened with Dr. Schacht. For there are many parallels between the case of Dr. Schacht and the case of the army. Dr. Schacht undertook to run the economic administration of Germany, and from the beginning has had serious conflicts with the party leaders. In order to retain his position, no doubt because he wished honestly to serve his country, he made compromise after compromise. He asked Hitler to give him a free hand to stand between him and the party and guard him from interference from it. Hitler gave him Goering, who was considered a conservative Nazi in economic affairs. But Goering used his position to aggrandize his power, and the whole business ended up with Schacht out of the economics ministry and a mere figure-head in the cabinet; a prisoner of his own attempt to compromise with this regime.

The army is in something of the same position. It, too, has compromised. It has made thousands of minor concessions, for the sake of getting on with the Nazi party leaders. But the case of Dr. Schacht must have given it pause. The army must have learned from the fate of Dr. Schacht that every concession encourages new aggrandizements on the part of the insatiable Nazi party leaders who made the revolution, and who eagerly snap up every scrap of power, regarding every concession as a sign of inherent weakness.

What Hitler will do now will be interesting. Perhaps there will be another purge. Perhaps there will be some shift in policy. We shall have to wait and see.

But the moral that the outside world might draw seems to me plain.

If the Nazis take ruthless advantage of every compromise offered by their own people, by those who inside Germany make concessions in order to further the German interest, what possible reason can the outside world have for believing that they will be satisfied with any concessions offered by it—in the form of colonies, for instance? If the German army accuses the Nazi regime of spreading outright falsehoods in the German press, in order to delude the German people, what possible reason should England have for believing that in their negotiations with the Nazi regime, they are told the truth?

SILHOUETTES

By RALPH T. JONES.

For all the paths of progress
Are limited in borders white,
The roads to human freedom
Are wet with human tears,
Joy grows because the way is
Labeled through the night,
The onward march is guided
By the bones of pioneers.

We Must Prepare

For Improvements.

All those of us who give thought to the problems, human and otherwise, that beset this old world are apt, at times, to grow impatient at the slowness in improvement of life's conditions. We fret and fume at the apparent stupidity of mankind in the mass and wonder why the dumbbeards can't see, as we see, the self-evident remedy for some age-old evil.

We gaze upon some invention, marvelous in its value but, after all, simple in idea and we wonder why the world had to wait through the centuries before it was brought to the man who came along to conceive and make practical that little gadget.

But we don't remember that, in the scheme of the Creator, there may be a good reason for delaying blessings. Perhaps mankind has to be made fit to receive the good things, before they can be given.

Maybe, in the warp and woof of the divine pattern, the plans would have been disrupted if some particular invention had been permitted to descend upon man's head before its time.

For Instance,

The Radio.

Take the radio, for instance. Isn't it possible that the world and these United States would have followed a far different path through history had the radio been invented and perfected, say 100 years, before it was?

For instance, I don't know whether it would have been good for this nation for William Jennings Bryan to have been elected President. No man can answer that question. Certainly, if he had been elected to the White House he would have changed the course of history, not only of America but of the world.

Can you doubt that if the radio had been the factor, in his earlier days, that it is today, the silver-tongued boy orator would have swept the country? Imagine his spellbinding genius turned loose over nation-wide networks, reaching into every home. I haven't a doubt he'd have been swept into office by a tremendous majority.

But perhaps the One who guides human destinies didn't want Bryan in the White House. Perhaps he saw that it wouldn't suit the plan He had devised for the United States and the world.

And so, perhaps, He didn't permit the blessing of radio to come to the world until it fitted that same plan. Until, in other words, He prepared mankind to receive and to use it.

Maybe Other

Things Are Withheld.

So, when you wonder, for instance, why man can't yet travel into the stratosphere and whenever he wishes, remember perhaps man isn't yet fit to see the wonders that exist beyond the limits of earth.

Possibly, in some distant age to come, man will be ready for the experience and then he will be permitted to travel through time and space and visit other ages, other portions of the universe.

And, perhaps, some day man will be fitted for peace. When he is, don't doubt that that war will be unknown. But, until man thinks peace in every contact of life, there will be no permanent peace on earth nor universal good will among men. Be sure of that.

Likewise, the millennium and heaven itself cannot descend upon the earth until man has evolved

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

George NEW YORK, Dec. 3. Is Peaved The income tax reviewer called on George Spelvin, American today, to go over his return for 1936, examine his private papers and ask some questions about his dreams and his personal life and met a strange rebuff.

"Nothing doing," Mr. Spelvin said. "Absolutely nothing doing."

"Now don't be like that," the reviewer said. "It's the law and you will only make trouble for yourself."

"Absolutely nothing doing," Mr. Spelvin insisted. "I am sore."

"What are you sore about?" the reviewer asked.

"I'm sore about this—where did you get that $5? and 'what did you do with that four-bits' when Jimmy Roosevelt and the boss himself and Henry Morgenthau get special treatment."

"But they have to pay income tax," the reviewer said.

"Yes, and so do I," said Mr. Spelvin, "and I have paid it, but now you want to take up my time asking a lot of questions that are none of your business, and how do I know you aren't going to go out and tell some night and spill a lot of gossip about me? And, moreover, I don't like the way they acted down in Washington when they were coming a lot of other people but refused to go into Jimmy's return, or the President's, or Henry's. That Republican committee said he had to turn up reports that Jimmy made a big income selling insurance to people who wanted to stay in right with the administration, but when he wanted to put an expert to work on Jimmy's returns, the way you want to pry into mine, the committee said, 'nothing doing.' Well, all right, nothing doing on his or the President's or Henry, nothing doing on mine."

Would Not "But, for gossakes," Be Proper "Henry Morgenthau is my boss. Can you picture me going in and acting like that with the secretary of the treasury?"

"Henry ain't my boss," said Mr. Spelvin. "I only know the committee refused to let an expert go over Henry's returns, the same as the experts went over other people's after Ham Fish challenged him. It's one thing to throw down a lot of papers like an inventory of the Pennsylvania railroad and say, 'there it is. Help yourself, chum,' but it's something else to turn loose an expert to see what the figures mean. Henry said people had established losses by exchanging stocks, and he said this was unethical. And the record says Ham Fish charged before the committee that Henry did it himself before the law was changed. Why not let an expert decide? What is the reason for all this bashfulness? Brother, I'm bashful myself."

Pertinent "But surely you don't think there's anything funny about the President's returns," the reviewer said.

"Well, what makes you guys always think mine are so funny, then?" Mr. Spelvin demanded.

"What have you got against Jimmy, anyway?" the agent asked.

"Nothing," said Mr. Spelvin. "I don't even know the guy. But I'll ask you one: What have you mugs got against me and a lot of other suckers? Always nosing around like a house dick, asking trick questions, pulling trick clauses on guys. I've got family connections or political connections, and any time I sell a bill of goods it's Spelvin working. I don't even belong to the Elks. I don't like that way of doing. You tell them for me it's unethical."

"Well, I am going to have to turn you in," said the agent.

"Go ahead," Mr. Spelvin said. "I am just practicing Mr. Roosevelt's preaching, and they can't hang you for that. I am hell on unethical conduct and special privilege."

Twenty-Five

Years Ago Today.

From The Constitution of Wednesday, December 4, 1912:

"JOLIET, Ill., Dec. 3.—Convicts, old and young, laughed and applauded like children today, when the first of a series of motion picture entertainments was given at the state prison by Warden E. J. Murphy. Only a few of the prisoners had ever seen a motion picture."

And Fifty

Years Ago.

From The Constitution of Sunday, December 4, 1887:

"It is said that Mrs. and Miss Silvery will give a series of quaint and novel entertainments during the coming season, commencing with a brilliant New Year reception. Many new and pleasant surprises are doubtless in store for those who are fortunate enough to be invited to this elegant home."

Another Letter From a Bald Headed Dad to His Red-Headed Daughter

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

My dear Louise:

Do it if you wish. But if a magazine is printed for morons, its advertisements are addressed to the same kind of people, and if you send a quarter to learn how to be charming, you will get a quarter's worth of experience and nothing more.

There is only one secret of charm, and you can learn it by observing charming people.

Have you ever wondered how two people who are opposites in almost everything can be equally charming?

The two most popular men in my old home town were a horse trader and a minister.

The horse trader was eloquently profane, boastful, loud, rough, quarrelsome in his cups, but generous to a fault, kind-hearted, loyal, dependable and fair.

The minister was quiet and gentle and unassuming, as ministers are likely to be, yet both men were liked by the same people.

They were liked because they were genuine.

Of course they were friendly and pleasant to everybody, but that isn't enough to insure popularity, for friendliness can be faked. The secret of their charm was their obvious sincerity. They didn't know how to put on. Whatever they did or said, they meant it.

If you will study the actors on the stage or in the movies, you will soon discover why some are great and the others mediocre. The second-raters are obviously acting, while the great ones have caught the knack of seeming real. Muni doesn't try to act like Pasterur, he is Pasterur.

That is also the secret of successful make-up. When powder and rouge are used without skill, anybody can tell it's a paint job. Such coloring couldn't be human. But when the job is done with skill and good taste, the result is a "beautiful complexion" that is enchanting because it looks real.

I don't mean to say that anybody who is natural is charming. Some people are naturally hateful. It's the old story that one shouldn't follow his natural bent if it makes him crooked. All the old virtues are necessary, but they must be genuine.

Many a poor kid fails because she is timid and self-conscious; many another because she has looks and poise but tries to act like some movie star and so repels people by her obvious lack of sincerity.

I once knew a young lady who put-on and played-act every year in vain effort to catch a husband, and so kept herself unpopular till she was almost thirty. Then she gave up hope of marrying; began to be her natural self regardless of what anybody thought of her, and promptly blossomed into the most charming person in the community.

You are naturally the kind of girl commonly described as a good egg. Don't hide your good qualities under a mask.

Love, DAD.

CONTRACT AWARDED TO INCREASE SPACE ON HIGHWAY BOARD

to Floors Will Be Added to Building; Road Bids
Are Opened.

Work on the construction of two additional floors to the State Highway building will be launched early next week, Chairman W. L. Miller, of the Highway Board, announced yesterday after the board awarded a contract for the work to the Beers Construction Company, of Atlanta.

The highway board yesterday opened bids on $1,137,000 worth of paving, grading and bridge projects. The successful bidders will be announced this morning.

Miller said that when the additions to the highway building are completed the post roads division now located at East Point will be moved to headquarters. The planning survey now occupies space in the Bonaparte building.

The Beers company bid on the addition was $107,000. The apparent low bidders on the highway projects on which proposals were received yesterday, follow:

Chatham-Savannah-Brunswick road, 10 miles of repaving and widening; Southern Roads Company, Birmingham, Ala., $28,000.

Covington-Newnan-Griffin road, 9.97 miles of surface treatment; Southern Construction Company, Atlanta, $62,501.

Grady-Construction of 6.319 miles of paved road, widening two bridges and constructing two detour bridges (two tracts); T. M. Strider & Co., Nashville, Tenn., $11,000, and Martin W. Jones, Jr., Jacksonville, Fla., $2,000.

Elbert-Construction of 7.841 miles of surface-treated road on Elberton-Toccoa highway, W. L. Strider & Co., Nashville, Tenn., $11,000, and Martin W. Jones, Jr., Jacksonville, Fla., $2,000.

EMBARRASSING QUIZ FACES SAM AIKEN

Wife No. 2 Says She Saved

Embarrassing questions face Sam F. Aiken, fugitive Georgia wife slayer, when he arrives today at the Berrien county prison camp, Nashville, Ga.

The questions revolve around details of his self-assured marriage last May to Reba Nowlin, who was arrested with him recently in San Angelo, Texas, and the presence in Atlanta of his undivorced second wife.

No. 3 in Jail.

While the second Mrs. Aiken declared she was "definitely through with him," wife No. 3 remained in jail at San Angelo, facing grand jury action on narcotics charges.

It was not learned if charges of bigamy would be placed against Aiken, for, as far as the second Mrs. Aiken is concerned, she'll enter suit for divorce as soon as possible, she said.

It was largely through efforts of his second wife, whom he married in Houston, Texas, that Aiken's death sentence for the murder of his first wife was commuted to life imprisonment. This Mrs. Aiken appealed so strongly to Governor Talmadge that he then husband was saved from the electric chair.

"But Now I'm Through."

"I saved him once, but now I'm through with him," she said, "Let him bring his third wife back from Texas to help him in his troubles."

Aiken revealed his marriage to the Nowlin woman Thursday, when, with Sheriff N. N. Hughes and Warden E. J. Nix, he began his journey to Georgia from San Angelo. He escaped last April from the Berrien county chain gang.

His marriage to the second Mrs. Aiken occurred following his daring break from Fulton tower, where he was being held following conviction for the murder of his first wife. He had become a respectable citizen and his wife knew nothing of his past.

STATE CERTIFICATION AID TO WPA ASKED

Labor Leader Says 1,000 Jobs Are Unfilled Because of Delay.

An appeal to the legislature to make an emergency appropriation or other immediate provision whereby applicants can be certified to the WPA was made yesterday by O. E. Petry, labor leader, in a letter to members of the general assembly.

Petry claimed approximately 1,000 available WPA jobs have gone unfilled because of failure of local welfare boards to certify applicants for relief work. Miss Gay B. Shepperson, state administrator of the Works Progress Administration, confirmed the fact that this many vacancies exist on the works rolls.

In his letter Petry called on members of the legislature to see that the 1,000 available jobs are promptly filled and then turn their attention to "the still many thousands of unemployed in Georgia." He suggested calling upon the national administration for further co-operation.

The WPA rolls now carry 21,460 project workers in the state, Miss Shepperson revealed. She said there are about 1,000 additional "employment opportunities" which she expects to have filled by the middle of the month.

Mrs. Mary W. Athern, director of the division of public assistance for the Fulton County Welfare Board, said its staff had been overburdened generally, causing a slowing up of WPA certifications. "Where the county commissioners are unable to assist, the legislature should help," Petry declared in his letter.

LAND BANK CHIEF
DIES IN MEMPHIS

Norman Monaghan Had Charge at New Orleans.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Dec. 3.—(P)—Norman Monaghan, 49, president of the Federal Land Bank of New Orleans and former Memphis cotton man, died today at a hospital after an illness of more than a month from kidney complications.

A native of Tupelo, Miss., and a graduate of the University of Mississippi, where he captained the baseball team and managed the football team, Mr. Monaghan practiced law and served as a railroad clerk before entering the cotton business at Memphis.

He was in charge of the Memphis office of the Commodity Credit Corporation in 1933. He later became vice president and treasurer of the Production Credit Corporation, of Louisville, Ky.

In June, 1934, he was named assistant director of the emergency crop and feed loan section at Washington.

Mother Holds Record
With Six Caesareans

OMAHA, Neb. Dec. 3.—(P)—Mrs. Katherine Quist, 41, of Omaha, may lay claim to a new record in American medical annals. She is the mother of six children born by Caesarean section.

Medical authorities at Chicago said recently the birth of a fifth child by Caesarean operation to Mrs. Isabel Barrett tied the American record, but Mrs. Quist's family apparently is unrecorded. Dr. John R. Nilsson, of Omaha, delivered the six children.

Mrs. Quist, whose husband was killed in a farm accident some time ago, is healthy, as are all the children, Eyvind, 19, Norman, 16, June, 11, Joy, 9, John, 6, and Marie, 4.

BANQUET TO CLIMAX FRATERNITY TALKS

100 Delegates From Southern Chapters Attend
Convention Here.

A banquet tonight will climax a two-day regional conference of Phi Delta Theta fraternity which opened yesterday at the Biltmore hotel with approximately 100 delegates from 21 chapters in the southeast attending.

C. A. L. Johnston Jr., of Mobile, Ala., and Dr. Carter Helm Jones, of Williamsburg, Va., a former resident of Atlanta, will be principal speakers, and Charles R. Yates will be toastmaster. The banquet will begin at 7 o'clock.

Joseph M. Clark, Atlanta attorney, made the opening address yesterday, and the meeting was presided over by Dean Hoffman, of Cleveland, Ohio, national president of the fraternity.

Frank Wright, alumni secretary of the University of Florida, presided last night at a smoker for the visiting delegates. A dance at the Georgian Terrace hotel followed the smoker, with chapters at Emory University and Georgia Tech acting as hosts.

Other national officers of the fraternity who are attending the conference are B. V. Moore, of Minneapolis, treasurer; Debanis M. Henward, of Syracuse, N. Y., members-at-large; Raymond E. Blackwell, of Minneapolis, scholarship commissioner; John B. Bal-lou, of New York, finance commissioner; Robert A. Gantt, of New York, alumni commissioner; and Paul C. Beam, of Oxford, Ohio, executive secretary.

Included in the committee of Atlanta alumni who are acting as hosts are Dr. B. T. Carter, Robert Troutman, Dr. Grady Clay, Judge C. Marvin Underwood, Henry Troutman, Ed R. Kane, Henry L. Bowden, W. Perry Bloodworth, Fonville McWhorter, Alex Gaines, Judge Jesse Wood, W. A. Speer, Judge Jule Felton, Charles Yates, Henry M. Poer, Wightman Bowden, W. E. Williams, William T. Hunter and Henry J. Miller.

'BUG' AUTO SEIZURE
OKAYED IN SENATE

Vote Sends Confiscation Bill to House.

Confiscation of automobiles used in the lottery business would be authorized in a bill adopted yesterday by the senate, 38 to 0.

Senator Everett Millican, of Atlanta, introduced the bill earlier in the week. It will go to the house of representatives for further action.

Millican's bill authorizes the state to confiscate and sell lottery cars just as it now now confiscates machines used in the liquor business. He said this move would be a "powerful blow" to the "bug" in Atlanta and other cities of the state where the lottery is played.

Councilman E. A. Minor, of Atlanta, asked Senator Millican to introduce the bill as the result of the grand jury's investigation of lottery activities in Atlanta.

MRS. L. M. HUNTER RITES
WILL BE HELD TODAY

Final rites for Mrs. L. M. Hunter, of 1230 McLendon avenue, who died Thursday night at a private hospital, will be held at 10 o'clock this morning at Spring Hill.

Dr. Louie D. Newton will officiate, and burial will be in Charlotte, N. C. Mrs. Hunter was an active member of the Moore Memorial Presbyterian church and the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers.

SURGERY CONTROLS LEG BONE GROWTH, AIDS POLIO VICTIMS

Operative Technique Reported;
Southern Medical
Body Elects Atlantans.

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 3.—(AP)—An operation to control the growth of the leg bones of children suffering from infantile paralysis and restore them to normal activity was announced today before the closing meeting of the Southern Medical Association.

The operation, reported by Dr. J. Warren White and Dr. W. P. Warner Jr., of Greenville, S. C., consists of chiseling out cores of bone from the long bones of the leg at the knee in much the same way that the core of an apple is removed with a paring knife.

Fifty-Seven Operations.
It was done, they explained, to stop the growth of these long bones in growing children who have had one leg shortened by the infantile paralysis infection. Instead of attempting to lengthen the short leg the South Carolina surgeons prevent the longer leg from growing so that the two will be equal in length when growth of the bone stops.

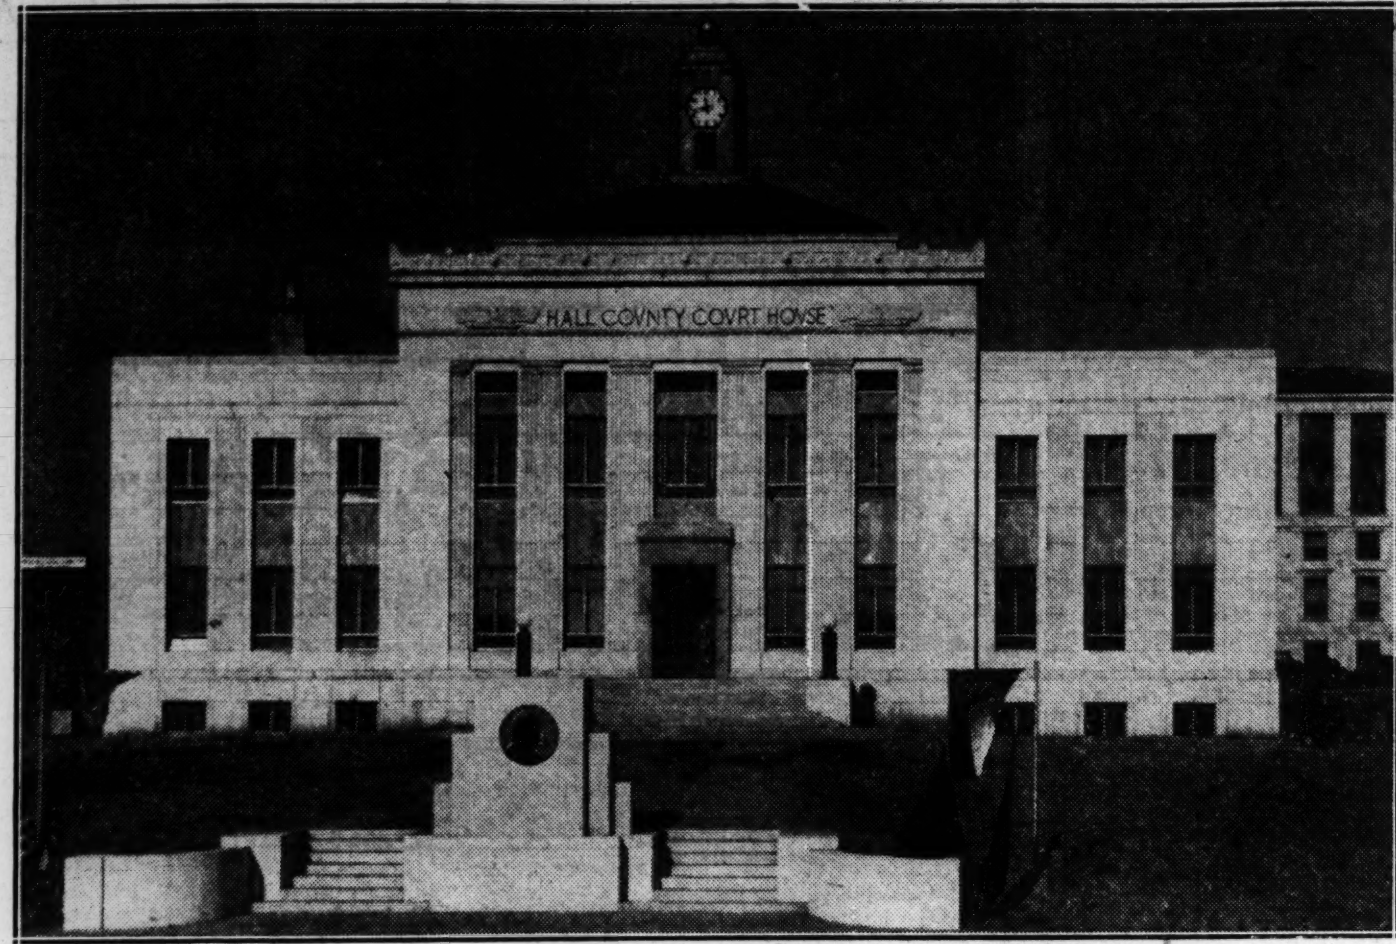

Twenty-nine children who would otherwise have been crippled for life have been restored by the operation, Dr. White said. Twenty-eight others have been operated on but the work is too recent to estimate the value of the results, he added.

Atlantans Elected.
At its closing session the association held a symposium on the use and dangers from use of sulfanilamide, pointing out that "the drug is finding its own level" in the treatment of chronic infections.

Six sections of the association elected officers at the concluding session. By sections they included: Pathology: Chairman, Dr. Everett L. Bishop, Atlanta, Ga.; secretary, Dr. Roy R. Kracke, of Emory University, Ga.

Bone and joint surgery: Chairman, Dr. Alfred R. Shands Jr., Durham, N. C.; secretary, Dr. J. Hiram Kite, Atlanta, Ga.

Dedication Ceremony Again Postponed by Change in Roosevelt's Plans

This new photograph of the handsome Hall county courthouse at Gainesville, recently completed, shows near its front entrance the Roosevelt monument and its bronze medallion, dedication of which again has been postponed because of President Roosevelt's inability to attend scheduled ceremonies. The President announced yesterday that while his return to Washington direct from Miami means cancellation of plans for visits to Warm Spring and Gainesville, he will visit Georgia at a later date for Gainesville's dedication exercises.

GEORGIA SUPPORTS F.D.R. POLIO DRIVE

Plans for Birthday Balls
Taking Shape.

Georgia is supporting wholeheartedly this year's "fight infantile paralysis" campaign. Chairman Keith Morgan, of the committee for celebration of President Roosevelt's birthday, said yesterday.

Strong pledges of support are coming to national headquarters, 50 East Forty-second street, New York, from leading citizens of Georgia, he said, adding indications are President Roosevelt's "second home" will "make a hearty and substantial response in support both of the new National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis and in the celebration of the President's birthday January 29." Organization work in Georgia will be in charge of Edgar Dunlap, of Gainesville, state chairman. Dunlap said yesterday committees would be appointed to supervise plans for more than 250 celebrations of the President's birthday in Georgia.

POLICE RAID MARKET; JAIL CRAPS SHOOTERS

MANILA, P. I., Dec. 3.—(AP)—Fifteen policemen raided Manila's International Stock Exchange today and arrested seven traders on gambling charges. Police said the gold share market was inactive so young traders turned to shooting dice.

EMBEZZLEMENT LAID TO MACON SALESMAN

MACON, Dec. 3.—(AP)—Sheriff's deputies today arrested John M. Carswell, 38, of Macon, on a warrant charging him with embezzlement from Kinsman & Everett, Inc., where he had been employed 11 1/2 years.

Robert H. Kingman, president of the wholesale grocery business, said the salesman is short "many thousands of dollars." Carswell is held in Bibb county jail for $10,000 bond. Carswell was employed in the office here originally, but had been a rural salesman since 1931. Mr. Kingman said he could not estimate how many years back the shortage began, nor the exact amount of the shortage.

SCENE OF SLAYING PLACED IN ROCKDALE

Survey of DeKalb Boundary
Settles Issue of Jurisdiction in Case.

CONYERS, Dec. 3.—Rockdale county will have undisputed jurisdiction in the case of Hubert Reagan, 22, charged with the murder of his estranged wife, Vivian Cunningham Reagan, 16, county authorities learned today. The farm home where the slaying occurred last Friday night is 46 7-10 feet on the Rockdale county side of the DeKalb county line. T. C. Jackson, of Decatur, DeKalb county surveyor, announced today. He had surveyed the county line after a question arose on the point of jurisdiction.

Mrs. Reagan was slain by a shotgun blast through a kitchen window of her parents' home. Reagan, who lived on a nearby farm, later surrendered and was removed to the DeKalb county jail in Decatur, but since has been returned here. The case will be presented to the grand jury in January.

MRS. STEVENSON HEADS VOTE GROUP

DeKalb League of Women Voters Elects.

Mrs. Wellington Stevenson yesterday was elected president of the DeKalb League of Women Voters, succeeding Mrs. W. A. Ozmer, who was selected for the post of second vice president. The annual election of officers was held at the home of Mrs. J. C. Johnson, chairman of the hospitality committee of the league, at 1024 Clairmont drive.

Other officers elected by the group are: Mrs. Claude C. Smith, first vice president; Mrs. A. L. Wade, secretary; Mrs. W. Paul Spier, treasurer, and Mrs. J. N. Platt, auditor. A. F. Newman, city manager of Decatur, was the principal speaker. Reports of various committee activities for the year were made.

SKELETON UNEARTHED ON TIP BY PRISONER

EDGEFIELD, S. C., Dec. 3.—(AP) A North Carolina prisoner led Edgefield officers today to a spot near the Edgefield-Greenwood highway, where they found a skeleton, believed to be that of Joe Spann, of Asheville, N. C., who disappeared last fall while officers sought him on a robbery charge.

The prisoner, booked as John Thomas Lane, was quoted by Sheriff L. H. Harling, of Asheville, as saying that Spann was killed by another man last September while the three were running a load of liquor from Augusta, Ga., to Asheville. The sheriff said he did not know the name of the man Lane accused.

Lane was held on a liquor charge when he told North Carolina officers his story of the killing of Spann. The latter was wanted on a charge of robbing a postoffice.

SUPERLATIVES NAMED BY MERCER STUDENTS

MACON, Dec. 3.—(AP)—Mercer University students, in a "who's who" election, named William Smith, of Albany, athlete and campus leader, the most popular male student and the friendliest. Miss Helen Glenn, of Macon, was chosen the most popular co-ed and also the best co-ed student, while Miss Peggy Chapman, of Macon, was elected the friendliest.

Others elected were: Hunter Hurst, of Perry, handsomest man; Miss Sara Rice, of Elberton, prettiest co-ed; Miss Edith Hillman, of Macon, and James Fitzpatrick, of Palisades Park, N. J., the best student athletes; Bert Struby, of Macon, the best male student, and Abe Conger, of Bainbridge, the biggest Mercer booster.

'Heidi' Comes to Life
In Fox Theater Film
"Heidi" one of the lovable characters of children's fiction, comes to life this week on the screen at the Fox.

Starring Shirley Temple and Jean Hersholt, the picture opened a week's run yesterday. The story is one of an embittered mountain-top exile, brilliantly portrayed by Hersholt, reclaimed from his fierce hatred of the world and of the little heroine who brings him new life.

Other actors in the picture are Arthur Treacher, Helen Westley, Pauline Moore, Thomas Beck, Mary Nash, Sidney Blackmer and Sig Rumann.—F. C.

1938 Merry-Go-Round Is Paramount Feature

Music, dance numbers, settings, costumes, girls all combine to make merry in the "Merry-Go-Round of 1938," which opened a week's run at the Paramount theater yesterday. Also featured is "March of Time."

Hollywood and Broadway apparently were combed to get the best available talent. In the cast are Louise Fazenda, Alice Brady, Mischa Auer, Billy House, Jimmie Savo and Bert Lahr and Dave Apollon's orchestra.

Several chorus and dance numbers staged by Carl Randall add feminine charm and grace to the show.—G. W.

FORD STRIKE CALL

SET FOR NEXT WEEK

CIO Head Says Kansas City,
Long Beach Plants
To Go Out.

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 3.—(AP)—Richard Frankenstein, international vice president of the CIO United Automobile Workers of America, declared here tonight "in all probability strikes will be called next week at the Kansas City and Long Beach, Cal., plants" of the Ford Motor Company.

"I can not yet give the exact date the men will be called out," he said, "but everything is ready."

California Unanimous.
He asserted the Long Beach workers "voted unanimously" for the strike. "At Kansas City," he continued, "soup kitchens have already been set up and the various committees are ready for the call."

He told a mass meeting of CIO workers the Ford strike in St. Louis, now in its second week, "is part of a carefully planned national campaign to organize Ford." "If it becomes necessary," Frankenstein said, "we will completely tie up production by calling out our men in the various material supply companies which supply the Ford plants."

"The reason this method has not been applied so far is because it involves the jobs of so many men."

Outlines Parley.
The strike at St. Louis "has aroused more interest in Washington" than the John L. Lewis-William Green peace parley, Frankenstein said tonight.

The Ford Company met with further delay today in its effort to obtain a circuit court injunction to prevent mass picketing of its local plant.

USUAL SUSPECTS

Long and Short Men Rob
Bank of $6,500.

MILROY, Pa., Dec. 3.—(AP)—A lanky robber and his stocky companion, both wearing dark glasses, locked officials of the Milroy Banking Company in a directors' room today and fled with about $6,500.

The two leaped into a green car with an Ohio license and sped up the mountains toward Bellefonte. Pennsylvania motor police said they had only meager descriptions of the robbers. The smaller of the two who entered the bank wore a red and black checked shirt.

The bank was held up about two years ago, the robbers using the same methods, wearing glasses and using shoestrings to bind their victims. "The loot that time was $2,500."

Scarf-Draped Collar Gives Softness to Barbara Bell Neckline

MY DAY

By Eleanor Roosevelt

NEW YORK CITY, Thursday.—I spent a good part of yesterday catching up with my neglected mail. In the morning, when I opened the course at the Todhunter School, I was much impressed by Mr. Boyd Fisher's speech on rural electrification. Several people came up to him afterward and thanked him for the clarity with which he explained certain points.

One fundamental fact came out of the whole discussion, namely, that the farmer cannot be served in the same way the city dweller has been. He cannot carry the cost unless the return on the invested capital is comparatively low. This is a tremendous field which should be served. Where private companies cannot do so, there is no question but that the government should supplement where it is needed.

I made a mistake in one of my columns recently when I stated that Judge Kelly, in Memphis, Tenn., is the only woman juvenile court judge in the south. Since that time I have been told of two others. Of course, I must have misunderstood what was said to me. Perhaps there was a period when she was the only one.

I am delighted, and I know she must be also, that she has colleagues in this particular field of work, for it is a field where I feel a woman can be extremely useful.

There are many men who have made successful and sympathetic juvenile court judges. If the court is in a large enough city, I should think it would be useful to have both a man and a woman serve, for many of the boys' cases are better handled by a man. There is no doubt that boys prefer a man to tell them what they should or should not do after they have reached a certain age.

Perhaps it is a natural result of growing up. The woman reminds them of their early stages of weakness and dependence. The older the boys grow, the less they like that reminder. Many a woman judge, however, can handle the entire family problem better than a man, and so it is interesting to see this field opening up to women.

I attempted to see "I'd Rather Be Right," last night, but so many people asked me if I was going to be there that I decided undue interest would be aroused by my presence and relied on the reports of my friends for an impression of the play. They all enjoyed it very much. One of them was much impressed by George M. Cohan's ability to be himself and yet make you feel interested in the problems which face the person he portrayed. This play seems to be furnishing a great many people with an amusing evening, but most of them come back afterward with this remark:

"Well, the outstanding interest is that we live in a country where a play like this can be produced and acted and have a long run without any interference from the government. Thank God for democracy!"

I would add, fervently, thank God for a nation with a sense of humor!

Barbara Bell Styles

No. 1377.

You will enjoy this tailored dress with feminine details under your winter coat. Built high at the waist for slender figure lines, the slim skirt is slightly flared with the front panel rounded in a high line over the diaphragm. Florine McGuire poses it for you.

See how trim and flattering is the simply cut bodice distinguished by changeable scarfs—a different color and fabric to lend variety and originality to this simple, basic dress. The model photographed uses gleaming rose satin on fine, light-weight, navy wool serge—a fabric with beautiful draping qualities.

Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1377 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 42 and 44. Corresponding bust measurements, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44. Size 16 (34) requires 3 5/8 yards of 39-inch material and 3 3/4 yard of satin for the scarf. Fabric: Light weight wool serge, wrinkle-resistant and of excellent drape—54 inches wide, about $3 a yard.

Pattern No. 1377 can be purchased for 15c. Please remit in coins, giving your name, address, pattern number and size. Do not send stamps.

Miss Camp To Fete Chi Omega Alumnae.

Miss Elizabeth Camp entertains members of the Atlanta Chi Omega Alumnae Association tomorrow at 3 o'clock at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edw. Camp, at 115 Palisades road.

The meeting will be followed by tea, the members of Group IV, of which Miss Camp is chairman, being hostesses for the occasion, and including Misses Reia Randall, co-chairman; Elizabeth Randall, Marguerite Holst, Louise Holst, Ann Harding, Elizabeth Trimble and Mrs. Harry Dunwoody.

All Chi Omegas in the city are cordially urged by the alumnae president, Miss Aline Fraser, to attend the Sunday meeting.

The luncheon group, of which Mrs. George R. Heine is chairman, and Mrs. Colquitt Meacham, co-chairman, meets at 1 o'clock, Wednesday, at Davidson-Paxon's. Members wishing to order their Christmas cards through the association must call Miss Louise Bode, chairman of the finance committee, at Cherokee 2490.

N. A. P. S. News.

Colonel W. P. Hayes, of the United States army flying corps, spoke recently to North Avenue Presbyterian High school assembly of the North Avenue Presbyterian school on "War and Peace." Mrs. Haskell Boyer is teaching girls to sing carols for the Christmas service to be held at North Avenue Presbyterian church December 16, at 4:30 o'clock. The Glee Club, under the direction of Miss Margaret Battle, will sing Christmas music.

Freshman class gave a stunt on December 10, at 2:30 and 8 o'clock in the auditorium. The name of the stunt is "The Sidewalks of New York." Miss Jane Estes is chairman of the committee and Miss Mary Emma Smith is class president.

Miss Atkins Feted.

Miss Anne Atkins, popular debutante, was honored at a buffet luncheon Thursday by Mrs. R. Clyde Williams at her home on Wakefield drive.

The Christmas idea was carried out in the decorations, the table being covered with red and overlaid with a thin white cloth. In the center was a white Christmas tree with silver decorations and silver ornaments placed at intervals held red and white mints. Guests included Misses Atkins, Marjorie Adams, Flora Wright, Robin Adams, Laura Hill, Sarah Lewis, Ethel Brown, Tommie Quinn, Amelia Hewitt, Anne Voyt, Katherine Calhoun, Wilma Upshaw, Ida Akers and Dorothy Sanford.

Webb-Cotton.

QUITMAN, Ga., Dec. 3.—(P)—Miss Margaret Webb, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. L. Webb, became the bride of Ralph H. Cotton, of Moultrie, on November 28, Rev. H. H. Heister officiating. Mr. Cotton is the son of Mrs. J. D. Cotton and the late Mr. Cotton. The couple left for New Orleans and returning will make their home in Moultrie.

Your Figure, Madam

By IDA JEAN KAIN.

FASHION DESIGNERS ASSUME THAT YOU GET YOUR EXERCISE.

This season's evening gowns have apparently been created on the principle that all women have perfect figures! Unless your three major measurements—bust, waist and hips—are very nearly perfect, you won't be able to slip into one of these elegant creations.

We who just dismiss the major measurements and assume that you live up to the fashion designers' expectations. Since practically all the gowns fit with a glove-like fidelity, however, you are more than likely to want special exercise to deal with such unusually important measurements as the thighline.

As a rule you forget about the thighline from one bathing suit season to the next, but not this year! Whether you decide on a "needle slim" satin gown or one in the spirit of 1900, with frout ruffles swishing about the hem, you will find the skirt hugs the knees and accents this measurement. In most figures the thighs are not beautifully molded. They either bulge or sink in, for the very simple reason that the thigh muscles get very little exercise. With daily specific exercise you can wear down the fat pads or build up the hollows to give the thighs a lovely line. Begin your thigh exercise with the following: Position: Stand about 18 inches from a chair, the seat turned toward you.

Movement: Swing one leg, then

Evening fashions allow for curves—but not for bulges, even on the thighline.

the other, in a wide arc over the chair seat. The foot should describe a semi-circle in front of the body, moving from one side to the other and back. Perform 10 times with one leg, and 10 with the other. As you become more proficient at the exercise, extend the swing to the back of the body and try to keep the foot the same distance from the floor throughout the movement.

The second exercise is circulating and will give your circulation a jog. Position: Stand with the feet as wide apart as you can get them, with entire body stretching upward.

Movement: Leap into the air and bring the feet down in a criss-cross movement, with the right foot on the extreme left of the body and the left foot on the extreme right. Repeat the leap and return to original position. Continue the exercise with first one foot and then the other in front of the body as the legs are crossed. Begin with 10 counts and gradually increase.

When you do these exercises you will understand why it is that the thigh muscles are so much in need of special attention. Plan to devote 10 minutes a day to this type exercise.

FRIENDLY COUNSEL

By CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Problems of general interest submitted by readers will be discussed in this column. Correspondence invited. Your name held in confidence. Write to Chatfield, care The Atlanta Constitution.

Gentle reader, do you ever stop to consider how completely dependent we are upon our contacts with other human beings? Why we run down as an unwound clock if we lose touch with people. Just as competition is the life of trade, constant comparison of ourselves with others is the key that winds the works of our tickers. We have to work with those who think more, know more and have more than we to get a mule kick of stimulation and we have to check with those who think less, know less and have less than we, or we are likely to get down on our luck.

Your businessman knows this. Every progressive mercantile establishment has a corps of professional shoppers who regularly make the rounds of other stores in the vicinity to find out what the competitors have for sale, how they display their goods, what prices they get for their goods, how quickly they turn over their goods. The wide awake merchant wants to know up to and how they are succeeding. And he doesn't do it by the methods that others have found advantageous; he devises new methods suggested by what he's seen and heard in other stores. He can't profit by the competition which is the life of trade until he has made the comparisons which put him in position to compete for the trade.

Watch the woman who lives alone and never leaves home to see how others live. In time she will yield to the temptation to let her housekeeping go at sixes and sevens. Unless someone comes in occasionally to sit in her living room and stay for a meal, she doesn't titivate herself or scratch her surroundings up to scratch. What's the use to dust furniture, sweep down cobwebs, empty trash bins when nobody will see the dirt? And if she doesn't go occasionally to visit a friend whose home is spic and span, it won't be long until she's blind to her own dirt. Pretty soon she will be eating out of cans to save cooking, or lopping out of pots and pans to save dishwashing. She's running down.

Isolation from people is quite hazardous to the well kept house of the mind. Think our own thoughts exclusively (they are usually inverted) never swapping ideas with friends and acquaintances sharpening our wits against others' wits and our mental clocks slow down perceptibly. Newspapers, magazines, books may keep us going for a time, after a fashion, but there is no substitute for the warm vital interchange with flesh and blood people.

Gentle reader, you who are bored, down on your luck with your lip stuck out and your chin dropped low, here's what all you: you have tried to be a self-winder and your clock has run down. Hustle around do some checking and your ticker will pick up speed.

CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Service Guild Plans Benefit Dance

The Standard Club will provide the setting for the benefit dance sponsored by the Service Guild this evening at 8:30 o'clock. Proceeds will go toward the establishment and maintenance of a children's nursery school. The advance ticket sale for the dance indicates that a large attendance will mark the affair. An orchestra will provide dance music, and entertainment features will be presented during the evening. Members of the Service Guild will receive guests.

Mrs. Joseph Guzy is ticket chairman of the benefit dance, and is assisted by Mrs. Nathan Kahn Jr. as chairman of the decorations committee, and Mrs. Lyons Joel as refreshment chairman. Mrs. Morris Hirsch is general chairman of the affair. Officers of the Service Guild are Mrs. Leon Frohman, president; Mrs. Oscar Strauss, J. C. Davis, Rebecca Morgan, J. H. McCoy, C. B. Householder, W. W. Lampton, B. M. Mason, M. E. J. Bettis, J. C. Mitchell and Mrs. Fletcher.

Mrs. John Copeland Honors Debutantes.

Misses Willyna Upshaw and Alice Armstrong, a duo of popular debutantes, were central figures at the luncheon at which Mrs. John A. Copeland entertained yesterday at her home on Piedmont road.

Miss Frances Copeland assisted her mother in entertaining the guests.

North Carolinans To Give Dinner-Dance.

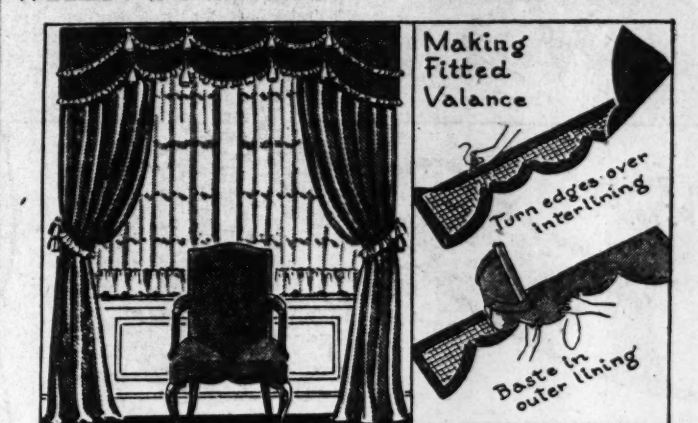

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Jones and Mrs. Louise Jones Cochran, of Greensboro, N. C., who arrive on December 23 to spend the holidays with their brother and sister, Mr. and Mrs. L. Carlton McKinney, will entertain 150 guests at a dinner-dance on December 27 at the Capital City Country Club. Mr. and Mrs. Jones and Mrs. Cochran are frequent visitors to Atlanta and will be extended a cordial welcome by their numerous friends here.

Gaskins-Prince.

NASHVILLE, Ga., Dec. 3.—The marriage of Miss Marie Gaskins and J. B. Prince, of Doris, S. C., was solemnized November 25 at the Methodist church here. Rev. A. H. Giddens, uncle of the bride, officiated.

RICH NEW DRAPERIES COST LITTLE WHEN YOU MAKE THEM YOURSELF

Luxurious new draperies—with an individual "decorator's touch." By learning a few tricks of the professional curtainmaker you can easily stitch them up yourself—and adapt them for single windows, too.

For your material choose a rich dark sateen in soft wine or forest green. To create that contrast between valance and side draperies which is so smart these days, get a gold galleon or braid trimming for your valance and—for a handsome finish—gold tassels. Use the braid to edge your tie-backs, too, but leave the side draperies plain.

After you've cut the sateen valance and stitched on the braid in a double scallop design, you're ready for the lining.

To make sure your valance will hang trimly cut an interlining from duck or sail-cloth—the exact size the finished valance is to be. Pin the duck to the sateen as diagram shows and neatly baste the sateen edge over interlining. Then stitch on the outer lining.

Next, a tape across the back of your valance—one inch below the

HEALTH TALKS

By DR. WILLIAM BRADY.

THE BRIDE'S HEALTH CERTIFICATE.

A long time ago I wrote an article entitled "The Bridegroom Health Certificate." It was published May 11, 1914. In that article I dared to say:

Of course it is impossible to present accurate statistics bearing upon the prevalence of venereal disease in men.

I remember how I took a deep breath right there and plunged recklessly on.

... but a conservative estimate is that at least one out of every three men acquires gonorrhea or syphilis before marriage, and a large percentage of these infective men transmit the disease to the innocent wives after marriage.

It would be interesting, now, to know whether that was printed as I wrote it. I failed to preserve copies of newspapers of that date. Any present reader by attaching a copy of the paper containing that article? I'd be grateful for a chance to see it.

I remember also the reaction to the article. A good many readers maintained that what was said for the gander is sauce for the goose; they insisted the same requirement should apply to the prospective bride. But I was a bold-fellowed and so I clung to the belief that the double standard of morals placed the onus on the man and excused the woman from submitting to a medical examination and furnishing a physician's certificate as evidence of freedom from communicable disease.

The legislation concerning the matter, however, seems to disregard any such chivalrous consideration. It requires a health certificate from the bride when they apply for a license to marry.

Commenting on this, in a personal letter and by the way, a doctor practicing in a metropolitan midwestern community says:

"We have a law here requiring every applicant for a marriage license to undergo an examination and present to the license clerk a certificate from an acceptable laboratory setting forth that the applicant is free from gonorrhea and syphilis. I think that is a good thing. However, I learned long ago that one side reported 'negative,' especially in the case of a female gonorrhea suspect, merely means that no gonococci were found in that particular slide, but is no proof that the suspect is free from gonorrhea. I believe that chronic gonorrheal infection in a woman can be ruled out only by repeated slides, and finally by a culture. Of course a fresh infection offers little difficulty, but after all it is largely a fact to give such a certificate on the basis of a single slide that happens to be 'negative.' I don't believe one in a hundred of the certificates of 'freedom from gonorrhea and syphilis' that are issued are properly issued. Nevertheless, I believe the principle is a good one, although the law may have to be modified eventually."

That view of the matter will be shared by most competent physicians, I think.

In 23 years, as many readers will be pleased to know, my attitude has abated perceptibly and I now believe the bride, too, requires a health certificate.

Dean de Ovies Speaks To Voters Next Week.

Raimundo de Ovies, dean of the Procathebral, will speak at the luncheon given next Wednesday by the Atlanta League of Women Voters at 12:30 o'clock, held on the Atlanta hotel roof. His subject will be "The Labor Front," a topic in which every Georgia citizen is vitally interested. Those desiring to attend, whether league members or not, are invited to be present. Mrs. J. D. Thomas, league director, requests that luncheon reservations be made at league headquarters, at W. Hall 6111.

Mrs. Thomas reminds league members that Wednesday is largely a free day. Ballots have been mailed and voting may be done by mail, at league headquarters, or at the luncheon. This will mark the last of the Wednesday meetings until after the Christmas holidays, but meetings will be resumed in January, and subjects will be announced later.

Mr. and Mrs. Webb Are Honor Guests.

Mr. and Mrs. James M. Webb, of Decatur, whose 50th wedding anniversary takes place December 6, were guests of relatives in Clemson, S. C., Sunday, where Mrs. Webb's niece were hostesses at a buffet luncheon in celebration of the anniversary.

Mrs. Carrie Reid Goodman, of Clemson, Miss Reid Reid Travaway, of Darlington, S. C.; Mrs. Mary Reid Chapman, of Newberry, S. C.; and Mrs. Carrie Sher Fisher, of Charlotte, N. C., entertained at the home of Mr. Goodman. Joe Webb, son of Mr. and Mrs. Webb, of Decatur, accompanied his parents. Mrs. Webb was the former Miss Elizabeth Reid, of Seneca, S. C.

Mrs. Webb was recently retired after 53 years of service with the Southern railway. Mr. and Mrs. Webb have resided in Decatur for a number of years and are beloved by many friends here. They will return Monday to Decatur.

HURRICANE HOUSE

By Bruce Henry

FINAL INSTALLMENT.

"Word of honor I'm not. The only reason I developed the exposed film was that when I came back to the camera I saw Tennington walking toward the house. I thought it would be amusing to show the old man his own picture, so I ran it through the tank. Then when I saw it included Bob and Boorsma, I knew I had something. What, I wasn't sure, for I had no way of listening to the sound track. So I printed it, more out of idle curiosity than anything else."

"Then you didn't plan to force a confession with the picture?"

"No," Ronnie admitted, sheepishly. "My theory was Bob might break down and let some clew slip while—like all the rest of us—he was under the nerve-racking influence of the storm. Instead, well . . . it doesn't matter. We've got the right man, in any case. Which reminds me, I've got to drive into town, if the roads are passable, and get in touch with the state attorney. This case will put him on every front page in the country."

April touched his sleeve, felt a blush mount to her cheeks. "Your theory about the storm wasn't entirely wrong," she told him, shyly. "I mean, you said people lost their veneer, their pretense, at times like . . ." She took a deep breath, plunged. "What I really mean is, if it hadn't been for the storm I never would have . . . have . . ." She suddenly buried her face in Gil's coat, her emotion too deep for words.

Ronnie chuckled. "So I may be a bad detective, but I'm a good cupid, is that it? Well, seeing you two kiss and make up is reward enough for me." He wrung Gil's hand. "Now don't let me ever hear you criticizing my passion for cameras again, you ungrateful lout. You'll owe plenty to my film hobby."

"Which," observed Sally, coming out onto the porch, "doesn't mean you can smell up our house with your hypo and stuff, Mr. Ronald Alter, sir! After we're married, you'll do all your dirty work in the cellar."

"After we're . . . we're . . . ?"

Ronnie gasped. "Married was the word I used. Marriage is a fine, popular institution. You'll like it. We've been sparring around for a long time, you and I, but now we get down to brass tacks. You spend too much money gambling and you throw cigarette ashes on the floor. You need a wife to train you properly, and I'm just the girl for the job."

Ronnie kissed her. "Madame, I've never had a handsomer proposal! I'd been planning to get around to asking you myself, for some time. However, now that you've spared me the agony, consider yourself an engaged woman. I'll marry you, heaven help me, though my ancestors will spin in their graves when they learn you are—horrible thought—a sob sister."

"Sally," April cried, genuinely pleased, "do you mean it?"

"He's really not a bad guy," Sally grinned. "Don't pity me too much."

"Pity you, I think it's marvelous! Where's auntie? I must tell her!"

"Don't bother," Sally murmured. "It was your aunt who advised me to . . . er . . . take the bull by the horns, so to speak."

Ronnie laughed. "Well, who wants to ride downtown with me and see what the hurricane did to the wickedest city in the world?"

"Run along, all of you," April begged, clinging to Gil's hand. "Gil and I want to stay here."

Yes, she was eager for them to go. She wanted her man to herself, for a while now. They had so much to talk about, so much to plan.

Yet when the others had left and the great house was silent, resting after the turbulence of the night, she had no words with which to tell him how much adored him. She could only stammer, waiting, aching for touch.

"My dearest," he murmured, "you're so lovely, so beautiful, know now I never did stop loving you entirely, even when seemed we were fated to be apart forever!"

He drew her to him, held her close. "Remember that night quarreled on Bob's yacht, and so many unkind things to each other? I hated myself that time for I thought I had lost you, though you hated me, too. More than that, I was sure you still loved Mort . . . his memo-

You weren't living, you were dead, seemed, sharing a world beyond the shadows with some one else. That night Captain Worley asked me why I didn't marry you, a I told him it was because you were still in love with my brother. I think he understood, too."

April touched his cheek tenderly. "I guess this is the time to tell you something I should have told you months ago," she said, slowly. "I never loved Mort . . . not the way I love you . . . not the way I've come to love you since you came here!"

"Darling!"

"But Mort trusted me, and had to keep faith with him, even after he died. Alive, he needed the faith in mankind I could give him after he had lost all faith. You knew his disposition—distrustful of everything, saturnine—adventurous, but seeking adventure down. But I never loved him. No, the way I . . . I love you!"

Gil's lips opened to speak, but instead pressed hers. Then he leered toward the bay side of the porch. For a time they stood close, linked, watching the play of the sun on the waves. She sighed, nestled against him.

"This is our house, now darling. Let's live here."

He turned, examined the facade critically. "Lots of repair work to be done. The storm . . ."

"But we have so much money now," she reminded him, eagerly. "And I love old Hurricane House. Give it to me for a wedding present."

Gil grinned. "I'll do that—this very afternoon. This is our wedding day."

And April, tingling, nodded. THE END.

A LITTLE SATURDAY TALK.

While I was in Paris, I had several talks with a 16-year-old English youth named James (or Jim) Davis. He had come to Paris to spend three or four months studying the French language, and practicing speaking it.

Jim was much interested in our column, and kept trying to think of subjects which would fit in with it. One day, he said to me:

"I believe your readers would like to hear about Scotland Yard."

"I think so, too," I replied. He said he had studied the English detective system "quite a bit," and I suggested that he write a letter on the subject. Here are paragraphs he has sent me:

"Scotland Yard is the nerve center of the English police force. The 'Yard' itself is a collection of rather old buildings which are getting to be too small for their staff."

"Sir Philip Game, the present commissioner of police, is in the office where the general plans of attack against criminals are made. The orders from this office are carried out by policemen and plainclothes detectives all over the country."

"Scotland Yard has a 'rogues gallery' with photographs of every convicted criminal. There is also

NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—(AP)—

Industrial stocks provided further rallying fuel for the stock market today and for the first time in several weeks.

Generally with a few climbing stocks more.

There was an erratic session throughout, the trading pendulum swinging backward and forward at frequent intervals. A hesitant buying rush that put the ticker behind momentarily.

Dealers thereafter were comparatively slow. Profit selling on yesterday's late run-up and the additional gains today pared earnings in the final hour.

Brokers said some speculative forces had turned to the recovery in stocks since last October and discounted much of the recovery in business and that the odds were more in favor of a rebound than otherwise.

Although the industrial picture was still cloudy, and congressional developments far from stimulating, the feeling seemed to be more pronounced that investment and production in many lines were near bottom and that an economic come-back was at least possible after the turn of the year.

The Associated Press average of 300 stocks was up 0.1 point at 107.3. Transfers totaled 1,556,980 shares against 937,180 the day before. It was the best volume since November 23.

TARZAN UNDER FIRE No. 42

Abdul Kev contrived a secret rendezvous with Tarzan's jailer, and pressed him with persuasion, threats and bribes. "No one will ever know," the Arab insisted; "it will appear that Tarzan was killed while trying to escape. Simple!" The jailer nodded assent.

... And while the thread of fate was weaving a net of doom around the ape-man, the Tarzan Twins and little Yvonne were moving cheerily along the jungle trail, confident that they were homeward bound. Dick stopped and looked back at Doc, who had fallen behind.
